BUILDINGS MOVE SO TRAFFIC CAN MOVE

The gap between Kentfield area stores along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and the old sidewalk signals that widening of the busy thoroughfare is about to begin. Customers of the stores in this building near the College Avenue intersection are using temporary ramps until the six-month construction project starts, probably in April, according to the Marin County Public Works Department. Seventeen homes were demolished in the stretch from Laurel Grove Avenue to Maple Avenue, and stores were moved back from the roadway. Right-of-way acquisition cost about $875,000 and the widening project is expected to cost $500,000, with the state paying $250,000.

2nd Reagan Aide Out; 2 More Pressed

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan has accepted the resignation of Jack F. Hatton, chief of the Division of Industrial Safety, the second major Reagan administration official to leave under fire this week.

Hatton, 64, offered to quit 15 days ago amid charges that his division was "pro-employer" and lax in prosecuting firms which violate state safety regulations. Reagan accepted the offer Thursday shortly after Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, blamed the Reagan administration for the Sylmar tunnel disaster last year which killed 17 men.

The Republican chief executive said he had been planning "some management realignment" in the Department of Industrial Relations since last fall and was accepting the resignation "so no more time will be lost."

Hatton's departure came one day after Kerry Mulligan, head of the state Water Resources Control Board, resigned after being asked to do so by the governor. Mulligan has been charged with attempting to bribe a Honolulu city official, but Reagan said he was asking for Mulligan's resignation because of an alleged conflict of interest because of his purported connection with a private engineering firm.

The governor asked Roy J. Bell, the 60-year-old chief of the Division of Industrial Accidents, to assume Hatton's duties "for the time being." Bell, a former Hughes Aircraft Co. executive before joining the administration in 1967, will also continue as head of his present division.

Assemblyman Jack R. Fenton, D-Montebello, chairman of the special legislative fact-finding committee which brought out the information which led to Hatton's resignation, indicated Hatton's exit alone was not enough.

The preliminary findings of the Select Committee on Industrial Safety accused the division of "lack of enforcement, inefficient and improper administration, serious morale problems, an inadequate education program and inadequate manpower."

Fenton, Democratic floor leader, said he and Moretti would continue to press for the resignations of Hatton's superior, William C. Hern, director of the Department of Industrial Relations, and Vincent L. White, one of Hatton's chief aides.

"Hern had the responsibility," Fenton said. "He is as responsible as much as Hatton if not more so. I think the people who are responsible have to go.

"Just getting rid of Hatton is not sufficient," Fenton said, adding there would have to be a change of policy.

He said Bell was "another employer-oriented" appointment. Hatton was chief safety engineer for Lockheed-California before joining the administration in 1967.

Reagan's acceptance of Hatton's resignation came somewhat unexpectedly. The governor had said he would wait until the completion of two investigations by his administration, one by the Department of Finance and one by a citizens' panel appointed by Hern.

But a spokesman for the governor said the preliminary findings of the Finance Department's inquiry "definitely showed areas of management in the division which needed strengthening" which could not be delayed.

Marin Land Tax Loophole Use Probed

Local Agencies Denied Immediate Fund Source

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin taxing agencies are being deprived of large sums of money because land specualtors are taking advantage of an old state law permitting withholding of property taxes for up to five years, Marin officials said yesterday.

The officials said the practice, while not illegal, means that taxing agencies are deprived of much-needed, more immediate revenue to the benefit of large landholders speculating with their property.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said he and other county officials were reviewing records to determine just how widespread and detrimental the practice is in Marin.

Under the law, enacted during the Depression to protect property owners from foreclosure, land owners are granted five years before back taxes and penalties must be paid.

By delaying tax payments, land speculators, who find it difficult getting bank loans, save the money for working capital, in effect using taxing districts as lending agencies, county officials said.

Arrigoni said the matter was first brought to his attention by Anne West of Inverness, who has been researching the practice with tax collector Stanley Fontez. Mrs. West is the wife of a Marin County planning commissioner.

The supervisor said he probably will ask his fellow supervisors within the next two weeks to support state legislation to reduce the five-year grace period to two. Homeowners, now covered under the same provision, would not be affected under his proposal, Arrigoni said.

The effect of such a change

PROJECT DELAYS SEEN FOR BRIDGE

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Several pet projects envisioned by the Golden Gate Bridge District must be delayed indefinitely because of pressure on its shrinking cash reserve by the bus and ferry systems. (Another bridge district story, page 8.)

This was the reluctant conclusion yesterday of district directors, who took a look at expenses over the next five years. Enough cash always was on hand to pay for past improvements, but those days are gone now that the district is in the transit business, directors agreed.

In a related issue, the district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins, advised the board that the district no longer has the power to levy a property tax within the six counties in its jurisdiction. Jenkins said that 1971 state legislation expanding the district's transit powers had repealed its original power to levy a property tax — a power used only frov 1929 to 1931 in order to organize the district.

Board President Lowell Edington of Napa County said he had asked Jenkins to clarify the issue, which has been raised by the Marin County Taxpayers Association in a series of advertisements in the Independent-Journal.

The advertisements have been based on a warning that the district could force property taxpayers to pay for deficits in its transit operations.

The five-year projection of revenues and expenditures by district auditor Gordon E. Dahlgren concluded that while the expenditures would consume "almost to the dollar what is left in the reserves (now $17.5 million), the district still can go ahead and do almost all projects planned."

The job of deciding which projects must be dropped or delayed will be referred to the building and operating committee, Edington said.

But the board, meeting as a committee of the whole, indicated likely victims may include a suicide barrier for $1,-

Pay Panel Head Is Endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George H. Boldt has won preliminary endorsement from Congress to continue as Pay Board chairman, despite fresh attacks from organized labor which says he is totally unfit.

The approval came from the Senate Banking Committee, which recommended the Senate confirm Boldt, as well as Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson.

Boldt and Grayson were appointed by President Nixon last fall, but legislation passed last month made both of them —and future appointees to the same jobs—subject to approval by the Senate.

Boldt, a federal judge from Tacoma, Wash., drew most of the criticism during committee confirmation hearings Thursday. AFL-CIO Legislative Director Andrew J. Biemiller said Boldt was both "inexperienced and unfit." The labor members of the 15-man Pay Board also have been critical of Boldt's performance, claiming he is indecisive and incapable of the decisions he must make.

Grayson drew less attention, although Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., expressed fear during the hearing that he had too much power. "You are a price czar," he said. "You have life or death power ... and frankly I'm very concerned about it."

In another development, the Commerce Department said the number of newly unemployed persons filing for unemployment compensation across the

Tiburon To Act On Building Ban

By GEORGE NEVIN

In an action which one councilman declared two years overdue, the Tiburon City Council last night said it will consider a building moratorium and take other steps to preserve much of the city's scenic ridgeland as open space.

In rapid-fire fashion, the council decided to begin talks with property owners which may lead to donations of the land to the city; declared itself interested in acquiring, in some fashion, 188 of the choicest acres and served notice it will slap a development moratorium on a total of almost 400 acres.

The moratorium — in the form of a 90-day holding zone for the property on and adjacent to the ridge which could be imposed immediately and later extended — will be considered at Monday's council meeting.

Although the formality of the interim zone remains, councilmen last night made it clear they intend to enact the moratorium.

Earlier, on motions by Albert H. Sennett, the council voted to solicit donations of land from the 12 property owners holding acreage above 400 feet in elevation and passed a "resolution of intent" to otherwise acquire the rest of the property.

The council also created an open space acquisition fund and George Ellman, former parks and recreation commissioner, made the first donation immediately — a $10 check.

Councilman Branwell D. Fancing said the city should have moved in on the ridgeland at least two years ago. "As I've been saying for years, let's go," he urged.

While Sennett's motion expressed intent to acquire the 188 acres located above 400 feet, with an estimated value of $1.29 million, the moratorium, if enacted, would cover a much larger area of some 400 acres worth $2.6 million.

The additional acreage below 400 feet, while not necessarily to be acquired as open space, should be controlled by the city

Peking Looms As Viet Peacemaker

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon's latest proposals to Hanoi may be designed in large part to persuade China to endorse holding an Indochina peace conference, according to Asian diplomats.

Washington and Peking have agreed that there will be no attempt during Nixon's China trip next month to try to settle the Vietnam conflict because, as presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger says, that must be done in Southeast Asia and not in Peking or Moscow.

However, both sides have acknowledged that various aspects of the Southeast Asian conflict will be discussed during the presidential visit and future developments may be strongly affected by the atmosphere created by the discussions in Peking.

There are several indicators which lend support to the idea that Nixon hopes China ultimately can be induced to propose, or at least support, the convocation of an Indochina peace conference:

—Although Nixon several times has formally proposed an Indochina peace conference, it was omitted from the eightpoint plan disclosed Tuesday. The belief of many Asian experts was that the United States had purposely dropped the idea as a formal proposal in order to take the curse off it as an "Ameri-

Tam's Snow Slips Away

Weather less bizarre than the storm which dumped snow on Mount Tamalpais and other parts of Marin and Southern Sonoma was predicted for today and tomorrow.

The U.S. Weather Service forecast intermittent rain with high temperatures in the 50s and lows in the 40s as Marin and Southern Sonoma thawed out from its first snowfall since 1968.

More snow had been predicted for Mount Tamalpais and other Bay Area peaks last night and today, but Burt Bogardus, a state park ranger on Mount Tamalpais said the temperature was above the freezing mark and most of the four inches of snow that fell Wednesday and yesterday had melted this morning.

Town Council Race Shapes Up In Ross

A manufacturer's representative announced his candidacy today for the Ross Town Council, assuring contests at the polls April 11 for all 10 Marin County and two Southern Sonoma cities holding municipal elections.

Tracy Van Voorhees of 1 Upper Road, Ross, said he would compete with incumbents John H. Chase, Alan P. Maginis and Jewell Ostrloh for one of the three town council seats open.

Meanwhile? there were more filings and announcements in Fairfax and Cotati yesterday and today.

Van Voorhees said he was embarking in politics for the first time because "if we don't all get together," the town's problems will not be solved. He cited flood control as one issue, declaring that despite the Army Corps of Engineers project on Corte Madera Creek, "Ross still has the same flooding problems as always."

Van Voorhees, 48, has lived in Ross for six years with his wife, Mary Bell, and three children. He was born in Billings, Mont., but had lived in Southern California until 1946.

Van Voorhees's announcement means Ross will have only its third contested election in 14 years.

Former Fairfax City Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson today announced she will run for the council again. Mrs. Wilson was defeated in a bid for reelection in 1970 after serving a four-year term on the council.

She is vice chairman of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council board, chairman of the housing subcommittee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin, and a member of the board of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs. She is also a member of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science guild and the League of Women Voters of Central Marin.

Nixon Plan Carries Hanoi Fund Clause

WASHINGTON (UPI) — North Vietnam would stand to get $2.5 billion of American money as part of an Indochina reconstruction program that the United States secretly told Hanoi it would be prepared to undertake when the war ends.

Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's top adviser and his secret negotiator in talks last year with North Vietnamese representatives in Paris, mentioned such a program Wednesday. He did not say how much money was involved. Other officials said the total that was stated in Kissinger's Paris talks was $7.5 billion.

Officials said the figures were indicative of the scope of the plan, leaving the impression that it could be subject to further increase.

The program apparently was formulated by the administration partly as a counter offer to a North Vietnamese demand for reparations for bombing damages.

The projected program reportedly would allocate $5 billion for South Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia and $2.5 billion for North Vietnam.

The program as described by administration officials represents a considerable development over a similar program outlined in 1965 by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

On April 7, 1965, Johnson talked of a $1 billion American outlay for all of Indochina to finance postwar development. But he did not specify an amount for North Vietnam al-

Two Officers Killed In A Surprise Street Attack

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two young policemen were shot fatally by three gunmen outside a Lower East Side restaurant Thursday night while on foot patrol.

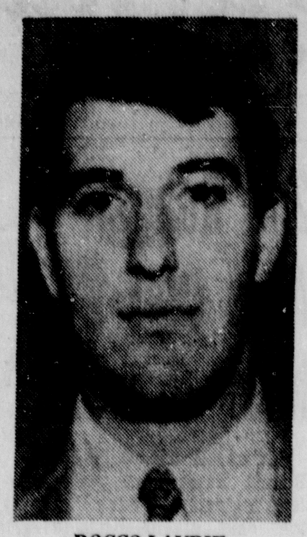

Patrolman Gregory W. Foster, 22, the father of two children, died almost instantly in a hail of bullets, police said.

His partner, Rocco Laurie, 23, died early today in Ballevue Hospital. His wife and parents had maintained a vigil in the emergency room while he underwent surgery.

Foster and Laurie were the first two policemen killed in the line of duty in the city this year. Last year 13 were killed.

The two officers, assigned to foot patrol on the precinct's neighborhood police team, were checking on an illegally parked car when they were gunned down, police said. They saw a car parked next to a fire hydrant and went into the Shrimpboat Restaurant on 11th Street to inquire about ownership of the car.

The restaurant owner said he told them he did not know who the car belonged to, and walked out front w th them. He told police the officers walked way to theright and he was looking to the left hen the shooting started. He said he dived for cover.

A witness reported he saw one of the gunmen run west "jumping up and down" and firing a gun in the air, police said.

Foster was shot at least four times in the face, police said. Laurie was hit at least nine times and suffered wounds in the throat, chest, back and groin, according to police.

Police said both men were shot without warning, and their service revolvers stolen while they lay helpless.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Crash Suspects

BELGRADE (UPI) — Government officials said today that an exile group known as the Ustachi may have caused the crash of a Yugoslav airliner that killed 27 persons.

The Yugoslav Airlines DC9 exploded and crashed in northwestern Czechoslovakia Wednesday on a flight from Stockholm to Belgrade.

Authorities said the Ustachi also may have been responsible for the explosion Thursday aboard a train en route to Vienna from Belgrade in which six persons were injured.

Consolidation Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government investigators said today that federal child care programs should be consolidated because a survey in one major city found duplication of services under 11 different programs being administered by three cabinet-level agencies.

The General Accounting Office, in a report to the House Education and Labor Committee, said its findings should be "useful" as Congress prepares to debate a child care bill to replace one vetoed last year by President Nixon.

The report was sent to each House member by Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., ranking GOP member of the committee, who led the unsuccessful effort in the House to kill the $2 billion child care and development bill later vetoed by Nixon.

Apollo Repairs

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Space Agency engineers expect to have Apollo 16 repaired and back on its original schedule early in March for an April 16 flight to the moon.

The spacecraft and its Saturn 5 rocket were hauled from the launch pad back to the Saturn hangar Thursday.

The schedule calls for replacement of a damaged fuel tank in the command module late next week.

1,400 Laid Off

DETROIT (UPI) — Layoff notices went out today to the first of the estimated 1,400 city workers to be idled in an economy move to reduce an anticipated budget deficit of $30 million.

The layoffs, effective Feb. 11, will affect 661 workers. At the same time, the city will begin eliminating the jobs of 739 other workers through attrition and early retirement.

Of the 661 workers to be laid off, 301 are fulltime employes, the remainder part-time seasonal recreation workers.

Gromyko Approval

TOKYO (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said today the Soviet Union would not object to efforts by Japan and the United States to improve their relations with China as long as it did not endanger his country's security.

"The talks for improving relations with China should be conducted so as not to impair the security of the Soviet Union," Gromyko told newsmen at a conference before his departure for Moscow.

He said Russia also wanted to restore normal relations with China but that Sino-Soviet relations had worsened.

Girls Suspected

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Security sources said that girls attending a soldiers' dance may have planted bombs inside one of Northern Ireland's most heavily guarded British Army bases. One bomb blew up today and another was defused.

Security sources said local girls invited to a dance Thursday night in Palace Barracks at Holywood outside Belfast may have smuggled the bombs past sentries and dogs guarding against attacks by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Peace Petitions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seeking to convince Hanoi that President Nixon's peace plan has widespread backing in Congress, Republicans have begun circulating petitions in both houses supporting Nixon's moves for a negotiated settlement.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford have been collecting signatures on the letters to Nixon for the past two days. The objective is to demonstrate that Nixon's eight-point plan has broad political support despite dissension over the war and differences over how it should be ended.

The minority leaders declined to release the letters now, but said they were broadly worded expressions of support for Nixon's objectives, and express the hope that Hanoi would be responsive.

Pope Wants Clean Look For Rome

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The 1929 concordat between the Vatican and the government of Italian dictator Benito Mussolini guaranteed the "sacred" character of the city of Rome.

Pope Paul VI wants to make sure the ity shows that character—and a clean face, free of pornography, vice and human misery—when the next holy year of the Roman Catholic Church rolls a ound in 1975.

Speaking in his capacity as Bishop of Rome, he told the City Council Thursday on its annual visit to the Vatican that he wants to see "firm protection of Rome's singular character" as the capital of Roman Catholicism.

That character, he said, "is being weakened, if not forgotten and beclouded, in the name of progress and 'cosmopolitanism'."

"The not-distant event—within three years—of the holy year makes this question particularly urgent," the pontiff said.

The Roman Catholic Church has celebrated a holy year every 25 years since 1450. Its members believe that by traveling to Rome in such a year they can obtain special spiritual benefits in the life hereafter. An estimated 5 million pilgrims from Italy and abroad visited Rome for the 1950 Holy Year.

The Pope mentioned no particular instances of pornography or vice which he wanted abolished. Church authorities frequently criticize unbridled movie advertising in newspapers and posters, and the sale of books they consider pornographic. In comparison with some European capitals, Rome has a relatively reserved night life.

Paris Newspaper Ceases Publication

Mrs. Simone Del Duca said Paris-Jour would close down immediately and blamed labor representatives for aggravating the paper's financial position.

Aide Says Tax Act Is Working

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The No. 2 man in the Treasury Department contends the law designed to close tax loopholes is working despite the fact that 112 persons earning over $200,000 paid no federal income taxes last year.

Undersecretary Charls E. Walker told the House Appropriations Committee Thursday that the Treasury is analyzing the returns of the 112, including three persons who earned over $1 million in 19$0.

He defended the 1969 Tax Reform Act that was designed to make certain that everyone with substantial income pays at least some tax.

Walker said that some of the provisions, such as reduction in unlimited charitable deductions which are allowed the very wealthy, have not yet become fully effective.

Monday the Treasury will go before the House Ways and Means Committee and explain the 112 no-tax cases, Walker said. He said he will show that the 1969 law has been "effective" in blocking tax escape.

The disclosure in 1969 that 155 people with incomes over $200,000 in 1967 paid no taxes led to passage of the tax reform measure.

Walker's appearance before Ways and Means will be to ask Congress to approve a $50 billion increase in the national debt ceiling to a record $480 billion so that the government can cover two successive budget deficits.

But Walker obviously has anticipated questioning about those people who pay no taxes. Several congressmen have said they will question Treasury officials sharply on this score.

In 1969, the last year before the tax reform measure, there were 300 people with incomes over $200,000 who escaped paying federal taxes.

Of that 300, 52 reported incomes for 1969 of more than $1 million.

Topeka Judge Denies Kunstler Case Right

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI)—Attorney William Kunstler says he can not imagine a "grosser violation of the First Amendment" than the refusal Thursday by a U.S. District Court judge to let him appear in court here.

"What he's done is punish me through my clients because of my public utterances criticizing courts," Kunstler said.

Judge George Templar did not allow Kunstler to represent a homosexual organization in the hearing because of the flamboyant attorney's "persistent enunciations that these courts are not the place to get justice."

The homosexual group, the Gay Liberation Front, was seeking an injunction from the court to force the University of Kansas to recognize it as a campus organization. The groap then would be eligible to apply for student activity funds ad use university facilities.

After an opening exchnge of words with the judge, Kunstler picked up his papers and moved to sit among the spectators.

Kunstler, the defender of the "Chicago Seven" said he had had an argument with only one court, that of Judge Julius Hoffman in Chicago, and that he respected all courts. As he sat down, however, he said Templar's action made him lose some respect for this court.

"I doubt if I could diminish your respect for this court," Templar answered.

A young Lawrence, Kan., attorney, Jack Klinknett, then took up the case for the "Gay Lib" in his first federal court appearance. Klinknett, who passed the bar in 1970, presented arguments that the group's rights under the First Amendment had been violated by denial of official recognition.

Kunstler said, "He's doing all right. It was an emergency and he was suddenly thrown into it."

Templar, however, denied the temporary injunction on the grounds that the young lawyer had failed to show that the homosexual group suffered "irreparable damage" from denial of recognition. He said the injunction was denied because the plaintiff group did not have how probability of success in the final decision.

Nixon Sets China Trip On Feb. 16

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has decided to begin his trip to China on Feb. 16 — stopping over two days in Hawaii and one day on Guam en route so he can adjust to the time changes.

In revealing additonal details Thursday of preparations for the journey, the White House also said there will be two separate advance parties arriving in China on Feb. 1 and Feb. 14.

The group arriving Tuesday will include 65 American technicians who will help set up a ground broadcast station which will beam communications, including color television, to a satellite over the Pacific and thence to the United States. The ground station will be put up in a trailer at the Peking Airport.

On Feb. 14 an 18-member delegation will arrive to make last-minute preparations for the visit.

Assistant Press Secretary Timothy G. Elbourne will be with the first advance party and his assistant, Jack D'Arcy, will join him in the party arriving Feb. 14.

The White House also said the final list of newsmen who will accompany the president has not been drawn up. The press party will number about 80.

Winter Wallop Felt Throughout Nation

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The middle Mississippi valley to the upper Ohio river valley was "on the rocks" today as ice storms glazed the area and created hazardous traveling conditions. In the northeast quarter of the nation snow continued to accumulate, and extreme cold west of the central plains completed the wintry scenario.

Icy roads were blamed for four traffic deaths in Oklahoma Thursday as ice and snow storms reached from northern Texas into the northeast. A van-type school bus slid off a northern Indiana expressway, injuring two young persons. At least one traffic death on slippery roads was reported Thursday in St. Louis, Mo.

Scattered areas of showers and snow flurries were reported early today in northern California and southern Oregon, and a high pressure system has caused a cold snap in the Pacific Northwest forcing heavy demands on electric companies.

Heavy snow on the roof of the Seattle coliseum has caused parts of the aluminum roof to sag, threatening to cave in several sections of the roof structure. Attempts to spray the snow off with a mixture of water and anti-freeze failed when the equipment froze. Seattle has already spent $2,000 more than its $89,000 budget for snow removal this year.

In Oregon, the Bonneville Power Administration reported a "tight" power supply situation, and the Portland General Electric Co. reported record hourly power consumption Wednesday, at the beginning of the cold snap.

The search continued in the Rocky Mountain National Park Thursday for two Colorado State University students missing since last Friday. The students, from Minnesota, disappeared while on a crosscountry ski tour.

Searchers discovered the young couple's skis Thursday, near the scene of an avalanche, but search efforts were hampered by freezing temperatures and winds up to 50 miles per hour which reduced visibility to near zero.

Would-Be Skyjacker Was 'Tired'

BERKELEY (UPI) — A bushy-haired unemployed young man charged with attempted air piracy said Thursday he wanted to hijack an airliner to Cuba because he was "tired of running from the law."

A federal official, however, said the only charges that could be uncovered against Patrick H. McAlroy, 27, were traffic warrants in Long Beach and Salt Lake City.

McAlroy said in a court affidavit he was wanted on various criminal charges and decided on the spur of the moment to hijack a helicopter to San Francisco International Airport where he wanted a plane made ready for a flight to Havana.

He was arraigned on the federal air piracy charge Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Owen E. Woodruff, who set bail at $100,000 and ordered a psychiatric evaluation of the suspect pending a Feb. 8 preliminary hearing.

FBI agent Tubal V. Farquhar told Woodruff that McAlroy arrived in the bay area two weeks ago and bought a .38-caliber pistol at a gunshop for $108.

He is charged with bursting into the Berkeley heliport Wednesday, waving the gun, and ordering a helicopter to fly him to the airport.

Air Bags '4 Times Better' Than Belts

ANAHEIM (UPI)—Air bags to protect motorists are up to four times as effective as seat belts—perhaps protecting occupants in crashes up to 110 miles per hour, the top U.S. auto safety official said Thursday.

"You get nowhere near the protection with belts that you do with bags," said Douglas Toms, national highway traffic safety administrator.

Tests in Philadelphia and at Holloman Air Force Base in New Mexico proved the bags effective in collisions at higher speeds than had been previously announced, Toms said.

A chimpanzee walked away from an auto that crashed into a barrier at 110 m.p.h. Human volunteers were not injured in collisions between two cars at more than 60 m.p.h., Toms said.

The bags offer "dguble, triple even quadruple" the protection of seat belts, Toms said in a news conference at the convention of the auto Specialty Equipment Manufacturers Association.

The air bags are balloon like devices stored in compartments facing the driver and passengers. When sensors detect the jolt from a crash, compressed air inflates the air bags so rapidly that they spring out and cushion the occupants before the force of the crash can reach them. The auto industry has been fighting compulsory installation of air bags, arguing that seat and shoulder belts would protect motorists if people would only use them.

The current government timetable plans to require "passive restraint" devices—of which air bags are the most discussed type—in the 1976 models.

"They (air bags) scare the auto industry because they are so complex," Toms said.

Sadat Readies Four-Day Soviet 'Strategy' Talks

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will leave Monday for Moscow where he will hold four days of talks with Soviet leaders to "coordinate strategy," diplomatic sources said today.

He will fly to Yugoslavia Feb. 3 for talks with President Tito, they said.

The semi-official Al Ahram newspaper said Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov was scheduled to leave for the Soviet Union today to complete arrangements for Sadat's visit.

The Egyptian president has described his talks with the Soviets as necessary "because we must coordinate our strategy and revise our calculations together."

Political sources said he was particularly concered about recent American decisions to give Israel more Phantom warplanes and to allow the Jewish state to manufacture American war material.

They said he would ask for additional Soviet assistance to offset Israeli gains.

After his talks in Belgrade with President Tito, Sadat will fly to Libya and Syria for discussions with his partners in the Federation of Arab Republics the newspaper said.

In Cairo today there was no sign of extra security precautions which were in effect during student disturbances Monday and Tuesday. Egyptians were celebrating the fourday Bairam feast and the city was in a festive mood.

In Beirut, the Al Moharrer newspaper, which is generally sympathetic to Cairo, said "If the Arabs continue to lose in the Middle East crisis, the Soviets will leave the area without the welcome they received" when they came.

Old Bomb Taggings Halted In Mudflats

Military weapons teams temporarily halted operations yesterday after tagging 510 bombs, most of them believed to be nonexplosive devices, sunk in mudflats near Hamilton Air Force Base.

Ordnance crews pulled out 31 bombs from the area which served as a target range before World War II. All of those recovered were 100-pound, sand-filled practice bombs, according to the base information office.

Operations were suspended until late next week because of unfavorable tides and bad weather. Experts have estimated the bomb count might reach 1,500, and say some might be live.

060,000, lighting of the towers for $50,000, a new maintenance area for $300,000, an automatic vehicle identifiecation system for $50,000, closed circuit television to check traffic for $200,000, a new restaurant for $150,000, lane control devices for $80,000 and a new southbound roadway bypassing the Administration Building at the south end of the Golden Gate Bridge for $3.7 million.

Only projects necessary to repair the span were certain to get funding, and they totaled some $10 million.

Directors differed sharply over the meaning of Dahlgren's figures. Director Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco, chairman of the finance committee, warned that estimated deficits for the bus and ferry system may prove to low, and urged maintenance of "minimum reserves," perhaps totaling $5 million.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis, also of San Francisco, countered that the figures showed "we're in an extremely healthy fiscal position."

Director E. J. Guidotti of Sonoma County sided with Leonoudakis, criticizing Lerer for "scare thinking." Reserves were unnecessary, Guidotti argued, because the district always could raise money if it needed it. He later told the I-J that increased tolls could be a source of immediate new funds.

Dahlgren's detailed report offered more optimistic predictions than his initial report of Jan. 14, which predicted a $21 million deficit next fiscal year that could virtually consume the reserve.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring explained that the initial report had included $12,179,000 in proposed projects not yet authorized by the board of directors, and had not included an estimated $9 million in revenue over the next five years from the forthcoming state sales tax on gasoline for transit purposes.

operate Christiansen's Bakery in Fairfax and live at 189 Cascade Drive with their three children. She has lived in Fairfax since 1961.

She said she is running because of a concern about "the direction in which the city has been going." The city council has been "unwilling to discuss problems with city employees" and councilmen "just don't try to communicate with anybody," she said.

Charges against fired Police Chief James R. Orr "appear to be mostly unsupportable and have proved to be not of very great magnitude," she said.

Mrs. Wilson is secretary of a Fairfax citizens committee to Preserve Land and Nature, which seeks to have the Marin Town and Country Club property rezoned to prevent residential development.

Two more candidates joined the race for the Cotati City Council election yesterday, expanding the field to seven persons seeking three positions.

Incumbent Alfred Falletti filed nomination papers to seek his third term. Falletti, who lives on West Sierra Avenue, is employed as a mechanic for the Petaluma Cooperative Creamery.

Herbert R. Miller, a member of the Cotati Planning Commission, took out candidacy papers. He is self-employed as a private investigator.

Miller moved to Cotati from Petaluma two years ago and was appointed to the planning commission four months ago. Miller lives at 240 West Cotati Avenue.

The council had before it last night a 15-page report on acquiring open space prepared by City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer, who did not attend the meeting because of illness.

Left for future council consideration were some of the recommendations contained in the report, including seeking federal funds to buy the land and floating a bond issue to cover part of the cost.

The council gave Mayor Denis T. Rice a free hand to work with citizens of his choice to look into all possible ways of acquisition.

At the urging of several audience members, including Polly Smith, former city parks and recreation commissioner and now a member of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission, and William P. O'Neill, a city parks commissioner, the council agreed that open land outside city boundaries facing Paradise Drive also should be considered for acquisition.

Mrs. Smith called the plan "incomplete without the county lands" and said she didn't think residents of her neighborhood on the north side of the Tiburon Peninsula would vote for a bond issue to buy land only on the south side.

During the meeting, several issues loosely related to open space were brought up, including formation of a redevelopment agency to rebuild the downtown railroad yards, citizen opposition to a comprehensive pathway system feeding into the open land and reversing the trend of allowing denser developments in exchange for clustering.

Rice, who called the railroad yards "blighted," said he thought the council should move quickly to study creating an agency to oversee redevelopment of the land.

In this manner, he said, the city could exercise control over what is built in the crucial downtown area. A plan advanced by a Los Angeles firm to build housing, businesses and a city hall on 44 acres of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad property was withdrawn last week after spirited public opposition.

Two citizens, Kathe I. I. Thayer and Donald A. Walker, said they didn't want trails to pass near their homes because they feared loss of privacy.

Councilmen Fanning and Anne L. Ellinwood commented they thought it time to discontinue giving density bonuses to developers who agree to cluster.

Instead, the reverse should be done — less dense developments allowed — Miss Ellinwood said, because the construction costs for a cluster project are less than for a traditional large-lot subdivision.

At the conclusion of the open space discussion, the council singled out as an area of special concern a 15.6-acre parcel just north of the Tiburon Peninsula Club for which 160 condominiums have been proposed.

Although not on the ridgeline, the property is a key open area and should be included in the building moratorium and eyed for possible purchase, the council said.

can plan" and make it easier for Peking to propose it.

—Secretary of State William P. Rogers, in explaining Thursday what the United States was prepared to do under the new plan, emphasized one aspect in which China is very interested. He said a cease-fire would immediately end U.S. air operations from bases in Laos, Cambodia and Thailand and that a peace settlement would make itpossible for the United States to reduce or completely withdraw the powerful air elements based in Thailand.

—An Indochina peace conference might tend to blunt the sharp edges of the two issues.

could bring tens of thousands of dollars in unpaid taxes into county and school district coffers, Arrigoni said.

The total figure can't even be guessed at, he said, adding that research of complicated files in the tax collector's office may produce answers within the next week.

"It's high time we compiled statistical data and information because it's my conviction that this is going on . . . and we need corrective legislation," he said.

According to Mrs. West, research on one real estate company — Land Investors Research — showed it owes about $120,000 in delinquent taxes for West Marin land holdings.

"In West Marin, we pay about 50 per cent of our taxes to the Shoreline Unified School District and Shoreline is in financial straits," she said. "We can imagine that this district would be most happy to get its hands on $60,000 just from this one source."

Tax collector Fontez said a search of records indicated there are 1,725 parcels of property which have been delinquent in taxes for two or more years. Of those, only 350 are improved parcels.

This indicates, he said, that a large portion of those paying taxes may be speculating on land values.

Another indication, he said, is that the countywide delinquency rate is 3.2 per cent, while in West Marin it is 10 per cent, and in the San Geronimo Valley, 7.5 per cent. Both areas have been targets of land speculation.

El Dorado and Placer counties have the highest delinquency rates in the state — about 16 per cent — and "have the highest percentage of land held by developers," Fontez said.

Property owners delinquent on taxes must pay, in addition to the unpaid levies, a penalty of 18 per cent a year, otherwise the land is confiscated by the state and eventually auctioned. For land investors, the financial penalty is worth paying in view of the fact they have had capital to work with during the five-year period, according to county officials.

But Fontez said the law was designed to protect the "little propie," and not intended as a loophole that encourages what amount to long-term loans.

He said the Marin Tax Collectors' Association tried several years ago to combat the practice by proposing legislation to increase the penalty assessment for speculators.

But the plan was ruled unconstitutional by the state Legislative counsel, Fontez said, because it would have penalized one group more heavily than another.

However, Arrigoni's approach to reduce the five-year period may be legal, Fontex said. He reasoned that if the legislature can give income tax exemptions to homeowners, it should be permitted to grant special favor to homeowners and small farmers on the delinquency period.

STRIKE STRATEGY — President Harry Bridges of the striking International Longshoreman's and Warehouseman's Union held closed meetings yesterday and today with union officials in Portland.

(UPI Telephoto)

Harry Bridges: Led His Men Through Thick, Thin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Harry Bridges is a man of few words, who in his 70th year has tied up Pacific ports with the longest longshoremen's strike to ever hit the West Coast.

Bridges, President of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union since 1937, took time off from the job as a San Francisco Port Commissioner to lead the 122-day walkout. Today, he was in the Pacific Northwest discussing strike strategy with local union leaders.

Ironically, the labor leader's job as a port commissioner has been to drum up more business for shipping and the docks.

The hawk-nosed former Australian longshoremen is still wiry and apparently in good health. He took the helm of the 15,000-member ILWU when West Coast dockers split from the American Federation of Labor and went independent 35 years ago.

A registered Republican, he has indicated he may decide to endorse President Nixon for re-election on the basis of Nixon's friendly moves toward Red China. Bridges was thrown in jail during the Korean War, mainly for being friendly towards Red China.

The present strike is a crucial test for the man who was born Alfred Renton Bridges, son of a Melbourne realtor, until his rough-hewn buddies on the docks began calling him "Harry" back in the 30s.

Unless the ILWU "wins" the strike, observers feel other leaders of the 70,000-member union are going to blame Bridges for being too much of a statesman and not enough of a fighter.

Some of his union members have been disgruntled since he negotiated in 1960 a historic automation contract with the shipowners, permitting introduction of containers and other labor-saving systems.

The contract brought a decade of peace to the Pacific Coast waterfronts. It turned out well for the employers, and also for the longshoremen who lost their jobs but were paid anyway.

But last year, with a renewal at hand, containerization was expanding rapidly. Longshoremen were worried about losing more jobs. Some union leaders feared that Bridges might not be tough enough with employers.

The result was not only the first dock strike on the West Coast in a decade, but one of record length, which dragged on for more than three months interrupted temporarily by a Taft-Hartley back to work order but resumed after the order expired.

That is where Harry Bridges stands now. A man of few words, he refuses requests for interviews and intends to show what he is by doing what he does.

Not Eligible For Benefits

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A conscientious objector who performed government-approved civilian work as an alternative to military service is not elegible for veteran's benefits, a federal judge ruled Thursday.

Barry C. Spatz of Long Beach, Calif., registered with his draft board as a Conscientious Objector and served two years of alternative service as provided by the draft law. Then he sued the Veteran's Administration for refusing to grant him a veteran's educational benefits.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles H. Carr ruled that a veteran is a person who served in the active military service.

League Of Cities Target Of Criticism

The Independent-Journal reported yesterday that a letter from Mayor Denis T. Rice of Tiburon criticized the staff of the Association of Bay Area Governments for misrepresenting its membership.

This was in error. Rice's criticism was directed at the staff of the League of California Cities.

Saigon Defenders Alerted In Face Of Red Attacks

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese military sources said the 200,000-man defense force ringing Saigon was placed on a standby alert today because of the increase of Communist attacks in the Saigon region.

The air war, including an American strike at a radar site in North Vietnam and massive bombing of Communist supply trails by B52s, continued, and South Vietnamese officers at Pleiku said the B52s had stalled a threatened offensive in the Central Highlands.

South Vietnamese officials have predicted major Communist attacks in the highlands, 180 miles north of Saigon, but UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported today from Pleiku that military spokesmen there said saturation by B52 raids had blunted the expected offensive.

"We see no signs of an offensive getting underway now," the spokesman said.

The U.S. command reported more strikes in the Central Highlands area today by the Thailand-based B52s, particularly against the jungled area where Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam come together. Others struck along the Ho Chi Minh Trail supply routes.

The command said an F105 Wild Weasel plane flying escort to the B52s fired one missile at a North Vietnamese radar station which had locked onto its target, possibly one of the B52s. It was not known if the base 20 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone was knocked out in this 20th strike of the year against the North.

South Vietnamese military sources said the standby alert for the 50,000-man regular army and to the militiamen and home guard-type troops guarding Saigon's approaches was issued by Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of the 11 provinces surrounding Saigon. Minh is also governor of the military destrict.

The sources said the order, not yet announced officially, was issued because of the increasing number of clashes with Communist troops, particularly on Saigon's northwestern approaches between the capital and the Cambodian frontier.

The capital's population of 3 million has become increasingly jittery in recent weeks over the constant flow of official reports predicting major Communist offensives in the three-day Tet Lunar New Year holiday beginning Feb. 15 and aimed at embarrassing President Nixon during his Peking visit.

Bus Depot Commission Hike Rejected By Bridge District

Marin's five bus depots should remain open, but funds needed to keep them financially sound must come from the Marin County Transit District, not from the Golden Gate Bridge District. (Another bridge district story, page 1.)

This was the verdict yesterday of the bridge district's building and operating committee, which rejected a plea by depot operators and supporters to increase their 5 per cent commission on the sale of tickets for the bridge district's new bus system.

The operators formerly made up to 10 per cent commissions under Greyhound Lines, and complained they were making far less per sale under the new system.

The only help suggested by some bridge district officials yesterday was a temporary and partial subsidy to meet rental costs for the depots until the operators find some other source of new income. Increasing the commission was out of the question, the officials agreed, because it then also would have to be raised for other ticket outlets in San Francisco and Sonoma County.

The district's bus transit manager, H. Donald White, told the committee that a 5 per cent commission "was as much as we could afford in a $3 million deficit operation." He estimated that increasing the commission at the five depots to 8 per cent could raise district costs by $20,000 to $30,000 a year, but stressed that his estimate was based on only 15 days of operating the new system.

The bridge district's general manager, Dale W. Luehring, cautioned that raising the commission possibly could still leave the depot operators with too little profit to remain in business. Unlike Greyhound, the district offers no commission income from ticket sales for one-time trips, long-distance trips, freight or charter. The only commission is on the sale of discount commute books.

Depots, in any event, will be less important as the new system extends into residential neighborhoods, Luehring said.

The committee, despite pleas from the depot operators, bounced the issue back to the county transit district, which will consider it again at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Marin County Civic Center. The county district discussed the issue on Jan. 11, and arrived at no firm conclusions.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini, a committee member, said the county could subsidize the depots from forthcoming revenue from the statewide sales tax on gasoline.

The five Marin depots are in Mill Valley, San Anselmo, Fairfax, San Rafael and Novato.

Among those appealing for a higher commission was Edward T. Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council.

Ryken, whose council operates the San Anselmo depot, said the facilities provided "those little qualities that make a system more attractive to people." He cited the depot's role in distributing and interpreting schedules and providing shelter, seats, toilets, telephones and change for the exact-fare bus system.

Plea Set In Burglary Case

James M. Petersen, 24, of San Rafael, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of burglary.

He was to have entered a plea to the charge today.

Petersen was arrested early yesterday when Corte Madera police reportedly caught him coming out of a closed doctor's office.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

Eclipse Tomorrow Night

At midnight tomorrow, the moon will be on a collision course with the earth's shadow, ultimately producing a total eclipse beginning at 1:12 a.m., according to the Astronomical Society of the Pacific in San Francisco.

The celestial event, lasting until 3:12 a.m., will be the last total eclipse for the next three years and may be seen easily throughout Marin and Southern Sonoma, weather permitting.

The eclipse actually will begin at 12:02 a.m. when the moon enters the earth's penumbra, or partial shadow. At that time, sunlight is cut down in intensity by the earth silhouetted against the sun. But not until the moons enter the umbra, the area of total shadow, will a notch appear on the moon's surface and begin to spread.

During the first stages, however, the moon will have a reddish hue, caused by the changes of light rays filtered through the earth's atmosphere and continuing on to the moon.

Photographers who wish to take pictures of the event can do so with a hand-held camera during the partial phase, but should use a tripod or other steadying device for the longer exposures required during the total phase.

For an F/8 lens setting at ASA 125 black and white film, 1/50 of a second should capture the scene during the partial phase and 10 seconds should work during the total period, according to the society.

Color film, ASA 40, should be used in conjunction with a shutter speed of 1/10 of a second during partial phase and 40 seconds during total phase.

But society officials warn that because light and color conditions can vary widely, blanket exposures of two and four times under and over are advisable. A telephoto lens is essential.

Exchange Session

The annual general membership meeting of the Redwood International Student Exchange program is scheduled for 8 p.m. Feb. 7 in the Redwood High School Little Theater.

Cash Is Stolen From Parked Car

Cash totaling $105 was stolen from a car parked in front of 812 Fourth Street between 5 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. yesterday, San Rafael police reported.

The car was owned by Carmello Vega of 4500 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, police said.

Burglar Strikes In Three Homes

A burglar entered three apartments on Gomez Way in Mill Valley between 7 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Wednesday and took more than $500 in personal possessions, Mill Valley police reported.

Stolen from the Kathy Van Fleet apartment were a television and jewelry box of unknown value, while $230 in cash and personal belongings were taken from the apartment of William A. Patton.

Police said the same thief also took a television, rifle, a painting and $20 in change from the Fred I. Root apartment. Officers said entry apparently was through sliding glass doors in each case.

In another burglary, $80 in currency was stolen Wednesday from the Piper's Bag fish and chips restaurant, 25 Miller Avenue, police said.

Possible Bridge Jumper Tackled In Wild Chase

A Corte Madera man was plucked from the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday after he was chased on foot by a California Highway Patrol officer and finally wrestled to the ground by a passing motorist.

James Allan Wilson, 19, of 52 Edison Avenue, was taken to Marin General Hospital for psychiatric observation after the wild race.

The highway patrol said Wilson, an employee of the San Francisco Chronicle, first drew the attention of officers at 7:40 a.m. when he zoomed southbound through the toll plaza in his small foreign car without paying.

Wilson then made a U-turn and drove north across the bridge, officers said, parked his car at Vista Point and began running south along the span's east walkway.

Highway patrol officer Timothy A. Miller and two bridge employees pulled up behind Wilson and gave chase, and were about 100 feet behind him when Wilson spotted them and began stripping off his sweater and shirt.

At that moment Frank Donaldson, of 300 Oak Avenue, San Anselmo, stopped his southbound car in the middle lane, jumped out and tackled Wilson, bringing him to the sidewalk.

Officer Miller arrived moments later and took Wilson into custody. The highway patrol said Wilson told officers he was upset over the death of his father and "I just can't face it any more."

Kennels Request Permit Not Allowed

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday denied a request for a dog kennel permit after hearing complaints from neighbors.

Howard Jensen and Paul Hefner had requested approval for a grooming shop and silky terrier breeding kennel at 1152 Bodega Avenue, Petaluma. Neighbors complained that the dogs would be a nuisance.

Admits Lack Of Consumer Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The manager of a New York radio station said today that most broadcasters spurn consumer reporting because they fear "commercial reprisals."

In a speech prepared for the annual convention of the Consumer Federation of America (CFA), John Wicklein, general manager of station WRVR-FM, said "consumers should expect more from the media in the area of consumer affairs than they are getting."

"Quite obviously the reason most radio and television stations do not undertake consumer reporting is the fear of commercial reprisals," Wicklein said.

McGovern Reveals His Personal Wealth

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Promising to make a similar report every year if elected President, Sen. George S. McGovern made public today a personal financial statement. It listed the Democratic presidential cadidate with net assets of $271,600 and $89,100 in income during 1971.

McGovern urged all other presidential cadidates to disclose their finances and list their major contributors. The South Dakota senator said he was compiling a list of contributors to his year-long campaign and would release it when completed.

None of the other candidjtes has disclosed his personal finances or the names of his financial backers.

McGovern's statement showed total assets of $353,200 and liabilities of $81,600. The bulk of his assets come from a $110,000 home in Washington a $65,000 home in St. Michaels, Md., and $52,800 in a checking account.

In Washington, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., announced that Rep. Chet Holifield, dean of the California House delegation, as a national co-chairman and state chairman of Humphrey-for-President campaign. Humphrey called California a "key state" in his battle to win the nomination.

Three other Democratic aspirants, like McGovern, were campaigning in Florida. At Tallahassee, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington criticized one of his foes, Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, as a man without foresight for having supported Spiro T. Agnew for vice president at the 1968 Republican convention, before switching to the Democratic party last year.

Lindsay like McGovern was in Miami where he spoke of the need for a "bill of rights" for senior citizens, while Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine told other Floridians that he is not thinking yet of a running mate —only of winning the nomination.

On Thursday, a congressional group charged with deciding which presidential candidates —or those mentioned as possible candidates —should receive Secret Service protection said the protection should begin March 20 —a week after the Florida primary.

The formula it drew up would include Sen. Edward M. Kennedy among those who would be offered the protection.

Kennedy, brother of two men killed by assassins, would welcome the protection, his office said Thursday after a bipartisan congressional committee devised a formula for determining who was eligible for government-financed security.

Candidates with at least 5 per cent support in the Gallup and Harris public opinion polls taken closest to March 20 will be able to use Secret Service agents. The protective system was enacted shortly after Kennedy's brother Robert was shot to death during the 1968 campaign.

With a large field of candidates running for the Democratic and Republican nominations, it was estimated that about 10 persons would be protected at a cost of $20 million.

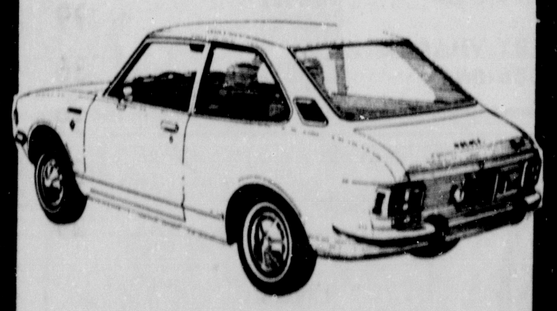

Nixon made his first formal move for re-election Thursday by naming Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans as "chancellor of the exchequer of one of the two major parties." Stans resigned his cabinet post to run Nixon's campaign finances.

Enrico's In Fairfax Is Good — That's Why It's Crowded

Look closely at any restaurant that is crowded from hors d'oeuvres to dessert with customers and you'll find that this is not a state of affairs that just happens by chance.

Several years ago I airily described a little Italian restaurant here in Marin as a "sleeper." I lived to digest my own words. By the time they got passed around from mouth to mouth there wasn't time for a catnap. I don't think the place has ever dozed since then — if indeed it had in the first place. All I did was pour a few drops of benzine on a spark that was about to break into flame.

It was a little place then, and still is, located on Broadway in downtown Fairfax. If you haven't discovered Enrico's by now you've missed one of this community's busiest centers. People who wouldn't move two blocks without resorting to the family car stand here willingly on one foot and then the other waiting for a table. They stand because there's no place to sit that isn't already occupied. If there were, a waitress would probably put a soup plate in front of them and start serving.

If you think the dining room is crowded, you should see the kitchen. This is where members of the Croce family — Enrico, Edna and son John — do their work. There is just enough room for them, a couple of helpers and the food they are preparing. Not much more. If there were, they'd probably use it for more food.

Good thing there isn't. You'd need two doggie bags instead of one.

There's no mystery why Enrico's is successful. Good food and a lot of it at reasonable prices — and the Croces' own hard work in putting it all together.

But don't say I didn't warn you. The line forms just inside the doorway.

JAPANESE RESTAURANT FOOD will be available again on the San Rafael Miracle Mile next month — on Feb. 9, if present plans are carried out.

That is the day when Akitoshi Takagawa of San Francisco plans to open at 2130 Fourth Street, where the Otafuku used to be. The place already has a Japanese decor, but a few remodeling touches are being made for the new operation —to be called Restaurant Fujiyama.

Takagawa will serve lunches and dinners Tuesdays through Sundays, closing on Mondays. Initial hours will be from 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. These may be changed later. Meals will be moderately priced, with both complete Japanese meals and a la carte selections.

The new owner has applied for transfer of the Otafuku wine and beer license and they will serve sake, Japanese wines and beers.

GEORGE AND BONNIE LOIZOS have returned from their January holiday and are back again at the Cafe Ambrosia in San Anselmo. Complete Mediterranean dinners run from $3.50 to $6.75.

MADAME DESCHAMPS at Le Vivoir in Sausalito has come up with some interesting new a la carte dinner selections which are bound to tempt the epicurean palate —particularly of those looking for French dishes not to be found on the average menu.

Among them are terrine de rilettes Rabelais (from the Touls country in central France) at $1.75; an omelette paysanne a la mode du Quercy (stuffed with fried potatoes, mushrooms and ham) $3.95; terrine de tripes du Pere Nagloire (cooked in French hard cider) $5.25; two vegetable entrees — assiette de crudite (uncooked) $5.25 and assiette vegetarienne (cooked) at $5.75. And there's a steak petite bourgeois at $4.50.

Reservations are advised here. Le Vivoir, in the old Casa Madrona Hotel, is temporarily closed both Mondays and Tuesdays.

A NEW SERVICE called Don's Catering has opened at 175½ Paul Drive in Northgate Industrial Park.

Specializing in both Continental and Oriental cuisine, it is a project of two chiefs — Don Darling and Mike Kondo. Don was trained in Switzerland and his 15 years of catering experience include three years at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco. Mike learned the arts of Oriental cuisine in China and Japan. He had his own restaurant in Japan, and for the last five years has been night chef at Gino's Restaurant in San Francisco.

DON DARLING
Project of. . .

MIKE KONDO
. . .two chefs

What they do is help plan and provide food and drink for business and social occasions — a small meeting, grand feast, cocktail party, intimate dinner party, barbecue, wedding, you name it — everything from a casserole for two to a banquet for 200 or more. They invite inquiries and a chance to talk things over.

THE WINDJAMMER in Tiburon is closed temporarily and plans to open again on Feb. 9.

LOWELL HAWK, veteran musician at Rubini's in Fairfax, who recently announced his forthcoming retirement, now plans on leaving early in March. First thing on his retirement schedule is a long stay in Europe, for about a year, I think.

I know someone will replace him at Rubini's, but more about that later.

TONY AND BART SCANCARELLO have decided to give up Sunday service at Little Joe's, 801 Fourth Street, San Rafael, but they will be open through the rest of the week from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. for lunches and dinners.

They have quite a menu here, with a number of Italian specialties.

SAN GERONIMO NATIONAL GOLF COURSE plans on resuming its Sunday family night family dinners on Feb. 6.

SCOMA'S OF SAUSALITO plans on closing next month for enlarging and remodeling. This seafood restaurant should reopen early in March.

SONAPA DELICATESSEN at 41 Throckmorton Avenue, Mill Valley, in operation since 1954, is now serving hauf brau dinners from 5 to 9 p.m. every day.

WINE CONSUMPTION is on the increase again. Last year Americans drank more during the first 11 months of the year than they did during all of 1970 or any full year before then. And this is just California wine. What they did with the imported stuff I don't know.

Actual wine consumption of California wines throughout the country January through November came to 202.6 million gallons, according to the Wine Institute in San Francisco. No mention is made of December and wine over the holidays. Maybe they haven't finished drinking that up yet.

'Hollywood' Image Label For Reagan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Women's liberation leader Gloria Steinem, who has characterized President Nixon as "sexually insecure," today said Gov. Ronald Reagan suffered from a "Hollywood" image of what a man should be.

She said she felt Reagan was "a man does not give in or back down even when he's wrong."

Miss Steinem recently told the National Press Club in Washington that Nixon was possibly "the most sexually insecure chief of state" since Napoleon Bonaparte.

Later, Miss Steinem was stood up by the male-dominated state Assembly. Or maybe she stood up the Assembly.

She arrived at the Assembly chamber at 10:15 a.m., a half hour late. The assemblymen and assemblywomen had left 10 minutes earlier.

Miss Steinem told newsmen presidential candidates can be rated on their "machismo," which she defined as a kind of "insecurity factor."

Nixon, she said, had a high machismo rating, possibly because he did not take an active part in World War II.

"I believe he was selling hamburgers in Nixon's snack shop during much of World War II," she declared.

In contrast, she said, Democratic presidential hopeful Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota had more acceptable views on foreign policy "because he has experienced war."

Other Democratic presidential candidjtes generally came out poorly in her view. She said Sen. Edmund Muskie was "bad on women's issues" and had a strong temper.

She rated Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota "somewhat better" on domestic issues, and dismissed New York Mayor John Lindsey as a "super WASP."

Retirement System For BART Workers

OAKLAND (UPI) —Directors of the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system voted 9-1 Thursday to include its hourly wage earners under the umbrella of a retirement system for public employes in California.

The approval came after two years of study by a board-appointed consultant and lengthy debate.

BART currently has about 250 hourly workers. The figure is expected to jump to 800 when the system is fully operational.

Teachers' Right To Spank To Continue

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Teachers in Los Angeles schools still are allowed to spank, swat or paddle unruly students, by decision of the Board of education.

After months of debate by the board, a grand jury investigation, and emotional speeches for and against spanking, the board voted 4-3 Thursday against a motion that would have outlawed corporal punishment in the schools. The motion would have forbidden teachers to slap, spank, shake or otherwise physically punish students.

Target Of Plot Seeks To End His Marriage

Frank R. Mettam, whose wife, Una, is accused of lrying to arrange his murder, filed in Marin Superior Court Wednesday for dissolution of their marriage.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mettam, 42, was bound over to Superior Court yesterday on a charge she tried to persuade a service station operator to arrange the death of Mettam in an auto accident so she could collect $90,000 in insurance. She is to appear in Superior Court Feb. 14.

Mettam, a San Francisco cab driver, said in his petition the couple was married Christmas Day 1966 in Reno.

Cheap Housing Sought At Campground Near College

Plans to turn Benson's Grove —used illegally as a campground by Sonoma State College students — into a low-cost housing development were presented last night to the Rohnert Park Planning Commission.

Since last fall, students unable to find housing within their budgets have taken refuge on the four-acre grove on East Cotati Avenue, opposite the main entrance to the college. Police have cleared the area, only to have students return with makeshift campers within a few days.

Alexis Tellis of the Octagon Co., San Francisco, told the commission he plans to make the site into an acceptable low-cost housing area. He said he would build two bath houses and a recreation center with food preparation facilities. He estimated that 200 students could live on the property in campers without losing open space. He said vegetable gardens could be set aside for students.

Commission secretary Sandra Nelson said the plan received hearty support from John Simmons, college housing director, and Nore Thiesfeld, college planning director. Both believed the plan would meet the needs of students while pleasing the community, she said.

Miss Nelson said the commission was impressed with plans to improve the area, but questioned whether students would allow the improvements to deteriorate. The commission also questioned what effect the plan would have on the value of surrounding properties.

Tellis said he would return to the commission when plans are firmer.

The Rohnert Park Planning Commission also:

APARTMENTS — Approved the request of Olaf Gross, Robert Harris and Walter Rathke to rezone 7.45 acres in the El Colegio area for 122 apartment units.

RESTAURANTS — Approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance to permit restaurants in neighborhood commercial districts.

HOME JOB —Approved the request of Charles M. Black to operate a catalogue sales business and install citizen band radios at his home at 8403 Lancaster Drive.

Malnutrition's Toll

MANILA (UPI) — Antonio Rodriguez, director of the National Mental Hospital, revealed that close to 60 per cent of the government hospital's 10,000 patients are suffering from malnutrition brought on by lack of funds.

Bagley Angered By Bus Law Repealers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The author of a new state law he insists is aimed at preventing court-ordered busing of California schoolchildren accused opponents today of dealing in "political perversion" in seeking its repeal.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, charged sponsors of an initiative campaign aimed at qualifying a repealer for the ballot with raising "the bugaboo of busing."

Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, condemned the move to repeal the statute by initiative as "futile and divisive."

Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, who kicked off the drive Thursday to raise 520,806 signatures to qualify the initiative for the November ballot, claimed the Bagley law "would require massive forced busing of students to achieve racial integration throughout the state."

But Bagley said his controversial legislation signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan Dec. 18 set up a "positive and constructive mechanism to prevent court-mandated busing."

"Statements to the contrary constituted no less than political perversion," he charged.

The bills, basically, establish a procedure under which local districts must move to prevent and eliminate racial and ethnic imbalance in student enrollment.

Bagley contended that when an administrative process for doing so is implemented the courts rarely step in and order their own integration and busing plans.

The new law, which will take effect March 4, establishes a series of guidelines to be considered in improving racial and ethnic balance but does not set percentages to be met. It also sets no deadline for adoption of an integration plan.

Among other things, a district board must compare the numbers and percentages of students of each racial and ethnic group in the district with their numbers and percentages in each school and grade.

When drafting an integration plan it also must consider trends and rates of population change among minorities within the district, school and grades.

In seeking to remedy imbalance, the law encourages districts to consider nonbusing alternatives such as locating a new school at a different site and reorganization of grade levels.

Districts must submit their integration plans for review and evaluation to the state Department of Education but still retain their control over the plan ultimately adopted.

Wakefield, the author of a 1970 busing law defused by the state Supreme Court, is currently sponsoring a bill to repeal the Bagley law but said he was "not at all confident" it will even get out of committee.

"So my only recourse is to go to the people with an initiative measure and let them have the decisive voice on this issue," Wakefield said.

Another Republican sponsor of the repealer initiative, Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes of San Diego, denounced busing as a "half-baked psychological scheme" and said the Wakefield proposal is "urgently needed at this time."

Welfare, Tax Rolls — Law's Inconsistency

Last year's Marin County delinquent tax list was published in September in the Marin County Court Reporter, which had been declared a newspaper of general circulation by the superior court. This didn't give the list very wide readership; but it certainly didn't keep it secret.

Anybody who has not paid his property taxes is not likely to be especially eager to have the delinquency list receive wide circulation anyhow. Probably he'd prefer that it wasn't published at all. But the law says it must be.

THOUGH IT MAY BE embarrassing to the taxpayer who, for whatever reason, was unable to pungle up the money in time to meet the deadline, publication of the list helps curb shenanigans with tax-delinquent property. Were the delinquencies kept secret, insiders could buy up property by paying the taxes, while no one else would have a chance.

Also, the desire to avoid publication as a delinquent itself helps to get the taxes paid. Were there no such publication, there would be more delinquencies.

Most people who get behind on their property taxes do so simply because they don't have the money when the taxes become due. In many cases this is because of unforeseeable expenses. Sometimes it may be just because they are poor money managers. Making public the delinquency list imputes no lack of integrity (though it may damage a person's credit rating).

The list of those receiving welfare payments from the public treasury is not published in any newspaper, not even the Marin County Court Reporter. Further, it is not available for examination by anybody outside the Department of Social Services. The law demands that it be kept secret.

THE LAW is inconsistent.

It forbids any examination of welfare records because this would result in embarrassment to the welfare recipient — just as publishing the tax delinquency list is embarrassing to the delinquent taxpayer.

P blishing the delinquency list helps prevent shenanigans with property. Suppressing information on welfare payments encourages shenanigans with welfare money. Publishing the tax list helps keep delinquencies down. Suppressing welfare information helps keep welfare rolls inflated.

ALL THIS WAS brought to mind because a subscriber sent us a front page of the Bethlehem, Pa., Globe-Times which carried this story:

"Harrisburg (UPI) — The Philadelphia Inquirer has won its fight to get a look at the state's welfare rolls.

"In a unanimous decision, Commonwealth Court here ordered Welfare Secy. Helene Wohlgemuth to give the paper access to the names, addresses and amount of welfare given to those on the rolls . . .

"In a suit filed in April, the Inquirer argued that records should be open because 'there is a legitimate, vital and compelling public interest in the manner in which public funds are expended.' "

There is indeed.

Legislators Create Problems With 'Almost-Adult' Voters

By EARL G. WATERS

In the political scramble to cater to the whims of the upcoming generation in hopes of capturing the votes of the young legions, the Legislature has created havoc if not chaos.

The lawmakers were torn between wisdom and chicanery. They hungered for the additional voting power which they dreamed they could sway to their benefit. They were also aware of the social impact which could result when such a mass segment of the population was suddenly orbited into adulthood without appropriate preparation.

So they hedged, along with hemming and hawing. They said to the 18-year-olds, "Yes, you are adults for the purpose of voting. Yes, being adults you can make contracts and even get married, just like other grownups."

But when it came to the question of drinking like other grownups, some second thoughts prevailed. In effect what they then said was, "Well, we really don't think you are that grown up."

AND WHILE they were concerning themselves with the issue of drinking and ultimately deciding that even though prohibition went out 40 years ago it still applied to this new class of adults, they overlooked some far more important things.

One of the "buts" was imposing full responsibility for their actions on the new adults. So it remains that a crime which would land someone over 21 in prison may still be treated as a juvenile offense when it involves the new voters.

This is not the only inconsistency in the new look worn by the teen-agers. Under their new status they are no longer dependents and aid to needy children will no longer include those over 18.

There is also the possibility that child support enforced upon divorced fathers will no longer include the new voters.

MANY OTHER QUESTIONS are appearing, but one of the most pressing is the matter of community college financing. In the current educational program matriculation from college normally doesn't occur before the 21st birthday. Those who serve a stint in the military are older.

And while, again with great inconsistency, some provisions for educational benefits which formally only went to minors have been extended, the community colleges were overlooked.

Some years ago, the two-year colleges had indulged in programs of questionable educational value designed to attract adults. It was contrived to milk state money intended for the education of children. Because of this the Legislature decreed that state funds for adult attendance would be curtailed. Now, the 18-year-olds being adults, the financial structure of the community colleges is threatened.

Assemblyman Leroy Greene has sponsored legislation to retain the age of 21 as the breaking point for state funds for these schools. This, according to Greene, will not require additional costs to the taxpayers but will simply maintain the current level of support.

Greene's measure points up the danger inherent in hasty legislation. It also violates Governor Reagan's concept that "those who enjoy the privileges of voting should also be expected to assume the responsibilities of full citizenship."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

End Of Fighting Won't Free Prisoners

On Jan. 20 you ran a cartoon by Conrad, showing a prisoner of war holding a newspaper with the headline "All Candidates in 1988 Election Pledge to End War."

The implication that ending the war or withdrawing troops will free our prisoners is scarcely supported by fact. I would like to point out that nearly 20 years after cessation of hostilities and complete withdrawal of troops by the French, the Hanoi government still holds more than 400 French prisoners of war.

Roll Call Proposal Picking Up Support

When I stepped out on the tightrope, I thought I might be alone. Thank you for joining me!

I don't know whether SCR 4, requiring a roll call vote in committees, will get anywhere or not. If it does, it will only be because the public has finally had enough of the Legislature's acting without full public scrutiny. I really appreciate the early boost you gave us in the Independent-Journal. Your editorial has already generated a good number of letters from Marin in Support of the measure.

Seniors Deserve Break On Buses

It is hoped the new bus service to San Francisco will be broadened in scope so that people will not have to walk so far to board a bus. The latter applies particularly to senior citizens who have heart ailments, etc. Another thing that should be taken into account is the fare. In San Francisco senior citizens can ride the buses on off hours for five cents. Would it not be possible to apply the same general rule to the Golden Gate buses, so that senior citizens can ride the buses at half fare during off hours? Many older people with fixed incomes should receive worthy consideration in this matter. In off rush hours, the seats are available, so why not use them for a worthwhile cause? Many senior citizens now drive to San Francisco because they cannot walk to the bus stop and also because of the high cost applied to riding the busses.

More Men Applying At Dominican College

Thank you very much for your editorial in the Jan. 22 edition of the Independent-Journal. Having you point out the gains and the needs of Dominican College is one more positive effort added to those that many of us at the college — administrators, faculty and students alike — are making to increase enrollment and to extend our services to a wider public.

You will be pleased to know that the January tally of undergraduate applications for the fall of 1972 exceeds that of January, 1971. So far one quarter of all undergraduate applications have come from Marin County residents; the other 75 per cent represent what promises to be a creditable mix of other California, out-of-state, and foreign students. We won't be quoting the figure "19 male undergraduates" ever again! Men have so far applied in a one-in-five ratio for 1972. The number of men on campus is sure to increase steadily, according to all indications for next fall and into 1973.

I hope that prospective students will have read your editorial and will want to investigate the possibilities of attending Dominican College.

Changes To 'X'-Rated Movies Protested

About a year ago, the Magnolia Theater in Larkspur was opened in a unique manner. The owner(s) had rented part of a vacant building and remodeled the premises quite cleverly into a theater. The movie fare was also unique in that the selections included many old classics starring W. C. Fields, Humphrey Bogart and Charlie Chaplin and others as well as old cartoons.

Both of our teen-age sons spent considerable time (and money) at the Magnolia, which pleased us as parents, because here was a place where the kids could go and meet their friends and enjoy a few pleasant hours.

Suddenly, without warning a complete turnaround took place with the showing of "X" rated films with such titles as "Executive Wife" and "Married Bachelor." This has to be the lowest form of grubbing for a dollar I have witnessed in some time. Set up the kids with good entertainment, then hook them on pornography.

I have asked my sons and their friends to cease attending the Magnolia. If others are made aware of this scheme, we may be fortunate enough to drive the Magnolia Theater out of business or force a change in programming.

This makes two theaters within the Larkspur city limits showing "X" rated kilms. If one feels the need for this type of entertainment, there is plenty of it in San Francisco. Who needs this garbage in Marin County?

Multiple Residential Moratorium Needed

Mayor O'Grady attempts to show that there were two crucial reasons that the 90-day moratorium on multiple development construction was not approved by the city council. First the moratorium would not have represented orderly government, and second that there is no evidence that the moratorium was necessary for the health, safety and general welfare of Larkspur.

As to the question of orderly government, it appears to me that the continuing review of multiple development proposals on a plan-at-a-time basis against a master plan which is five years old and currently actively being considered for revision is not orderly government. Development proposals are being measured against five-year-old standards which may not be today's standards. A 90-day moratorium would allow standards to be reviewed by all residents of Larkspur and development could then be approved on the basis of today's standards. This to me would represent an orderly government process.

The fact that the master plan for Larkspur is being reviewed at this time, with the help of the firm of Williams and Mocine, indicates that the current plan may not be in the best interest of the general welfare. Therefore waiting for 90 days until the master plan is reviewed and completed . . . appears to me to be the correct course of action . . .

Repeated 'Credibility Gap' Charge Is Losing Its Own Credibility

WASHINGTON — It's time to call a halt to the indiscriminate, misleading, distoring use of "credibility gap" in political debate.

It is used so loosely that it rarely has any real meaning at all.

It is an epithet and thus becomes a substitute for thought.

It has become little more than a shorthand synonym for "I disagree."

It is a tricky device to try to win an argument without saying why one disagrees."

IF SOMEONE DOESN'T like what a President or a former President or a secretary of state or defense or HEW says, he hurls "credibility gap" at him. It has become by repetion — not by proof — such a powerful accusation that little more has to be said.

Much more needs to be said.

If you began to look at the American scene only during the last few years, you might think that Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon were the first credibility-gappers.

If you believe in credibility-gappers, they go back a long way.

THE THEME of President Woodrow Wilson's 1916 re-election campaign was, "He kept us out of war," Did he create a credibility gap when he took us into war after German submarines began to sink U.S. ships?

You may not believe it unless you were around, but the thrust of Franklin Roosevelt's 1932 campaign was more conservative thanerbert Hoover's. He pledged to cut the federal payroll, reduce spending and balance the budget. Did he create a credibility gap when he found the economy so depressed that it would be against the national interest to do what he had promised?

Like F.D.R. in 1940 when he sought to blunt isolationist opinion by declaiming "I hate war," L.B.J. said in 1964 that he did not intend to send American soldiers "to fight in other people's wars." This was the phrase which the media picked up.

But Johnson attached many qualifying conditions to this statement and in the end did send U.S. troops to Vietnam, not to fight another's war but because he and Congress decided it was in the interests of the United States to resist Hanoi's efforts to conquer South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos by force of arms.

When Sen. John Kennedy ran for the presidency in 1960, one of his most serious accusations against the Eisenhower-Nixon administartion was that it permitted a perilous "missile gap" to develop between the Soviet Union and the United States. Was Kennedy creating a credibility gap by making this charge and then withdrawing it within the first week in office after he found it wasn't true?

WITH RESPECT to Nixon, it seems to me the credibility gap epithet is used most visibly as a synonym for "I don't like you."

President Nixon promised withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam. He is withdrawing them steadily. But his critics cry "credibility gap," not because he is failing to carry out his word but because they don't like the pace of withdrawal.

Nixon explicitly said he reserved the use of U.S. forces during the period of withdrawal. He announced in advance he would help Saigon carry out a defensive incursion into Cambodia, but when he did what he said, his critics did not just criticize the wisdom of his action, but charged "credibility gap."

IN THE 1968 CAMPAIGN Nixon said he "opposed recognition of Red China at this time." But somehow the "at this time" usually got left out of the media reports. So critics charged "credibility gap" when he took steps to normalize relations.

After the Indian-Pakistani war critics again charged "credibility gap" on the ground that the administration said one thing and did another. This is not supported by the facts. There is no deviation between the public record and the private record as the documents have now come out.

The "credibility gap" charge is a poor and pernicious substitute for "I disagree." It is an enemy of honest political debate.

Word Is Getting Around That ZPG Called It Right

WASHINGTON — It is blissful to be able to confirm that the public, followed at a distance by the politicians, is at last catching up with ideas you have preached for years. Columnists particularly enjoy this form of ego massage, often accompanying it with phrases like, "As we wrote in this space 11 months ago . . ." Organizations which at their foundings were brushed off as a bunch of kooks prattling on about weird schemes are especially susceptible, too, and liable to have hallucinations of grandeur when the rest of the world begins to discern dimly the truths they patented long ago.

For example, the outfit calling itself ZPG (for Zero Population Growth) is in position now to begin a great campaign of We-Told-You-So if it so desires, and from there, if it followed others' form, to demand that it be allowed to dictate the platforms and name the candidates of the major political parties. But ZPG is showing restraint uncharacteristic of an organization that has made it from the far fringes of idealism to the center of public concern.

BY NOW, few reading Americans can be unaware that a cold computer study financed by major European industries and produced by MIT scientists finds that current population and industrial trends will bring the human race into fatal confrontation with itself before the coming century is over. And in London, 33 prominent scientists back up a study that says population there must be leveled off, then gradually halved in order for the nation to survive.

That, of course, is the kind of warning ZPG has been putting out since its founding. But now the warnings have the cachet of big-business sponsorship and the seal of the scientific establishment, so sober, nonalarmist publications are paying attention. In this country there has been no single study with the wallop of thos cited above. It has been more of a drip-drip process. But an Opinion Research Corp. poll among the general American public, commissioned by the Population Commission, says it is taking effect.

By those figures, 65 per cent of Americans now think population growth is a serious problem; 57 per cent think U.S. population is "about right" now; most prefer to live in more thinly settled areas; more than half think population growth is causing the country to use up its natural resources too fast, producing social unrest and dissatisfaction; and that people should limit the size of their families even when they can afford a large number of children (57 per cent agreed, 32 per cent disagreed on that last point). Forty-three per cent thought two children constituted an average family size — more than picked any other figure.

Interestingly, when population growth was matched against other national problems to be faced over the next 30 years, 31 per cent ranked it ahead of pollution, 39 per cent ahead of racial discrimination, 31 per cent ahead of poverty, 29 per cent ahead of crime, and 39 per cent ahead of population distribution.

AS NOTED, the politicians are trailing the public at a fairly remote range. Despite general awareness of the growing urgency of population control and a widespread liberalization of abortion laws at the state level, not one of the recent congressional proposals applying directly or tangentially to the problem has passed into law.

For instance, a heavy last-minute telegram and letter campaign pushed by the United States Catholic Conference blocked Senate Labor Committee approval of a population stabilization resolution, although a majority of committee members were already on record in favor — and although the measure was merely a policy statement in favor of voluntary population control with no teeth in it, it was postponed and probably buried by a superior lobbying effort.

That lesson was not lost on ZPG. As this congressional session and election year began, the organization claimed 35,000 members in 380 chapters, and they were increasing their dues and otherwise muscling up to translate aroused public opnion into political action. They were trying to get presidential candidates to stand still for questioning about population policy. But they were not hallucinating any takeover of the Democratic convention or otherwise dreaming beyond their means.

Snooty Objections To $40,000 Townhouses in Tiburon Hills

That was no windstorm in Tiburon last week, that was the collective sign of hundreds of Tiburon residents relieved that a threat to the sovereignty of the single family neighborhood has been crushed.

Or has it? We won't know until Security Capital Corp. of Walnut Creek, which had proposed building 131 townhouses on 29.6 acres above the Reedlands and just outside Tiburon's city limits, decides whether to pursue the plan.

For the moment, though, it appears the goodly folks of Tiburon have turned back what some apparently think was going to be a ghetto of $50,000 houses.

Where else but in Marin, one is tempted to ask, could a development of $40,000 and $50,000 homes be considered an undesirable neighborhood?

In Grosse Point, perhaps, or Beverly Hills.

ALTHOUGH IT'S NOT fair to uay that everyone who fought the proposed development objected to it because "those people" (translation — anyone who isn't like us) might be able to afford homes in it, a goodly number of the objectors were so motivated.

According to the official minutes of the Jan. 3 Tiburon Planning Commission meeting, a Mr. John Kaufman was offended at the thought the development would attract "the type of people different than what you want for neighbors."

Another citizen, identified only as Mr. Fain, said he opposed the project at least partly on the basis of "the right of privacy for the citizens in the area."

Because of the overwhelming opposition, the commission postponed prezoning of the land to cluster residential until Jan. 19, but Security Capital withdrew the plan prior to that with hints that it might seek approval of the county planning commission, since the land is outside Tiburon's city limits.

THE MERITS of the project aside —and I'm not saying a 131-unit townhouse project with a density of 4.4 units per acre would be good for Tiburon —it is unfair to be against this type of development because it would "change the character" of the neighborhood.

The Security Capital development would consist of clusters of two and three townhouses scattered through a landscaped area. The residents would own the homes and lots, but they would not be single-family homes in the traditional sense.

This is the crux of the hue and cry, along with the possibility that undesirables might be able to afford $40,000 and then move in and blight the area of homes costing $75,000 and up.

The time is past when an enlightened citizenry can afford to continue carving up what little open land is left for single-family homes, each on its own quarter-acre. There's got to be a better way.

Perhaps the Security Capital way is not best for Tiburon, but to oppose it because the homes will sell for "only" 40,000 is one of the clearest examples of elitish and snobbery ever encountered.

Old Clipping Recalls Another Approach To Problem-Solving

The mail each morning is a never-ending source of pleasant surprises. Recently this came from a friend of many years, Mr. Bertram Dunshee. He and Mrs. Dunshee for years have been tireless in working for the acquisition by the state, for recreational use, of such land as the beach parks of Tomales Bay and acreage on the slopes of Mount Tam.

First his note to me, then the clipping from the San Anselmo Herald (now an integral part of the I-J) dated May 23, 1940:

"Dear Bill: I recently came across the enclosed in a pile of old newspapers. I thought you might find it interesting as it demonstrates that an idea, even a good one, sometimes takes 30 years to germinate."

HERE IS THE clipping: "James C. Leach of San Anselmo, a director of Marvelous Marin Inc., and William D. Fusselman, its secretary-manager, have written to the board of directors of the Marin Municipal Water District, suggesting that Phoenix Lake be made into a public recreation park and a boating and swimming place for the people of the county.

"No suggestion is made of the transfer of the property away from the water district. The plan would be to make its use as a recreation and swimming place through permission from spring to spring. If it should develop in any year that the water impounded in the lake over the winter would be required to serve the needs of the water district, the privilege of its general use that year would be suspended.

"The letter says: 'We understand that with the raising of the dam at Alpine, the water from Lagunitas and Alpine Lakes will be completely adequate for the needs of the district. We are also informed that before the waters of Phoenix Lake could be used now for domestic purposes, the lake would have to be drained and the bottom thoroughly cleaned.'

"If the water district seems inclined to view the proposal with favor, Leach and Fusselman will then take up the matter officially with Marvelous Marin."

My friends, there is a vast difference between acquiring land for recreational use and simply to look at. With reference to the all-day meeting recently held on this general subject, I am on the side of those who wish to form a recreation district. I have urged that this be done for many years. This way the taxpayers have the chance to express themselves.

WE ALL READ and hear of the efforts to take the heavy tax burden from the shoulders of the homeowners. Sure, that's all to the good. There can be no argument against it. Let's think this thing out. If legislation is forthcoming to effect this, it certainly follows that some other taxing method has to be devised at the same time to take the place of that which is now collected on home properties.

This means either some sort of sales tax or increases in income levies. I think there will be agreement that either state or federal agencies or both will be doing the job of collecting. Just how far and how fast do the extremists think they will get the do-re-mi to carry out the expansive plans that they formulate? Consider the struggle to get the state to pick up the tag fgr the expensive trials that we have been having lately.

I bow to no one in the love of outdoors, but I have worked on budgets for many, many years; perhaps for more years than anyone in the county. I often think of the song, "Sam, you cut the pants too long," when I read of the constant pressure to spend and spend on the "in" thing of the moment.

Children's Farm Is Shut Down

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Children's Farm in Golden Gate Park was emptied Thursday for the first time in at least 20 years.

Zoo keepers collected all of the animals, left the barn padlocked and the little corral empty because of a scarcity of manpower to care for the two lambs, three goats, 10 guinea pigs, 20 geese and a large number of rabbits.

The animals were placed in the main zoo where animal keepers can maintain better care of them, said Mrs. Beverly Rongren, education coordinator for the zoo.

GOP Registration Is On The Decline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The number of Republicans among all California registered voters has dropped to its lowest percentage in 22 years, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown reported today.

Brown said figures from the state's 58 counties show that the number of registered Republicans dipped from 41.2 to 38.8 per cent of the state's voters last year. The Democratic party rose by .6 per cent to total 55.2 per cent.

The secretary of state said Republican membership increased by 367,961 last year to reach 3,127,929. But he said the party's percentage declined because other parties increased by greater amounts.

The Democratic party, he said, rose from 3,661,554 to 4,448,986 members.

The total number of registered voters in the state jumped from 6,705,513 last year to 8,052,615 currently. Brown attributed the increase to the lowering of the voting age to 18.

Also because of the 18-year-old vote, he said, the percentage of eligible Californians actually on the voting rolls has declined. He said only 58 per cent of the eligible citizens are registered, compared to 69.8 per cent in 1962.

Brown said the decline-to-state voter registration category, which went from 3.3 to 4.5 per cent during the past year, showed the greatest percentage increase.

The Peace and Freedom party jumped from .3 to .6 per cent for a total of 47,785. The American Independent Party decreased by .1 per cent to total 43,785, or .5 per cent of the voters.

The county with the most registered voters is Los Angeles with 2.92 million. Orange County was the second highest with 569,230 voters. Alpine County had the least with 457.

La Raza Unida, the militant Mexican-American political group, failed to qualify as an official political party, Brown said. The group has 20,543 registered members, far short of the 66,334 members required for official recognition.

Suit Filed On Burial Method

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The ashes of a retired Coast Guard officer were scattered at sea Thursday, but the family doesn't like the method used.

A $515,000 damage suit was filed against the La Estrellita Mortuary Thursday, charging the ashes of Edwin H. Baird, 58, were scattered by a civilian airplane instead of a Coast Guard cutter as requested.

A Superior Court suit said the ashes were scattered "carelessly, negligently, wantonly and outrageously" by plane instead of by boat.

Stolen Guitars Must Be Repaid

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court has placed William Bradford Cleveland, 27, of no known address, on probation for two years and ordered him to repay $150 for three stolen guitars.

Cleveland earlier had admitted grand theft in connection with the theft of the musical instruments from a San Rafael man in December 1970.

Cleveland also was given a jail term equivalent to the time he had already spent in jail.

A PEAR with a face, perched on top of a straw hat was an accomplishment for Mrs. Martin Vermeullen, who describes herself as uncreative. After three years of attending hat making workshop she finally found something to do with the pear, creating a Carmen Miranda-type hat.

ANNUAL LUNCHEON SURPRISES

Their Fancy Creations Adorn Tables

By JOAN LISETOR

Mrs. Martin Vermeulen perched an artificial pear on top of a straw hat, and someone from across the room said, laughing, "After three years she finally found something to do with that pear."

In a large room filled with bits and scraps of fabric, buttons, bows, fringe and other decorative trims, 20 or so women — all members of the Marin Easter Seal Auxiliary —exchanged chatter and ideas as they created hats to be used as centerpieces at the auxiliary's Mad Hatters luncheon, which will be held in March.

Mrs. Vermeulen said she felt out of place at the two previous workshops when other members, who are creative, whipped out hat after hat. Finally, this year she got up her courage, and, after securing the pear, which has two eyes, a mouth and eyebrows, attached some plastic cherries and two large plastic loops, creating a Carmen Miranda-look. Tough skinned, she said it did not bother her at all when someone commented the pear looked like the head of an octopus.

The workshop was held at the home of Mrs. James Fahrner in San Rafael, who not only lends her home every year but her artistic talent and ideas.

SHE SHOWED the women how to cut a circle out of fabric, stitch around the circle and pull the threads to gather the fabric into beret shaped puffs. With a ball from a piece of fringe on top the puffs are sewn onto hats, and sewn on securely, Gay Fahrner said, because "we sew the decoration on to last."

The hats will be given away after the luncheon to one person at each of the 36 tables. How it will be decided which person will receive the hat this year is still a secret, but last year after the lunch everyone was told to look under his chair, and the lucky person discovered he had been sitting on the good news throughout lunch.

"During the year between workshops none of us throws anything away," said Mrs. Emmett Stevenson, president of the auxiliary. "Nor do any of our friends."

SHE POINTED TO an enormous plastic bag, which looked like it contained enough to decorate thousands of hats. She conceded it was just about a lifetime supply, and another woman added, "You should see my garage."

Mrs. Fahrner said she even saves the lint from her dryer, which is used for stuffing.

Other hats at the luncheon are made by members of nonprofit organizations and are entered into competition with cash prizes donated to the organization's charity.

Laurent Receives Ovation

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI)—Designer Yves Saint Laurent received an ovation yesterday for his classic relaxed look at his closed door high fashion show barred to the general press.

Saint Laurent's spring collection won such bravos as "magnificent" and "he has replaced Chanel" from invited store buyers, private clients and fashion magazine editors that after the show the bespectacled designer invited inside his salon a dozen shivering news reporters and photographers standing uninvited outside.

SAINT LAURENT refused to send invitations to the 550 fashion writers from around the world covering the collections because he admittedly was unhappy over their criticism of his nonetheless successful World War II look a year ago.

But yesterday with a smile he handed a small group of reporters champagne and caviar at his post-show party.

"I am very happy, very excited," said Saint Laurent as film star Catherine Deneuve and other private clients kissed and hugged him.

"I made the collection for private collections, less for the press. I don't want to make collections to have the idea of a new look, but to do perfect clothes."

Saint Laurent, wearing a chartreuse shirt, navy and white polka dot bow tie and navy suit, said he continued to "follow the same trend" in his show that caused all the controversy a year ago.

JOHN B. Fairchild, publisher of Women's Wear Daily, the American garment trade newspaper, invited to the show along with other specialized fashion publications, said Saint Laurent "is not going in a different direction, but was more luxurious, more classical, much calmer. He has replaced Chanel for that wonderful relaxed look."

And what are the clothes that prompted French and Italian buyers to say "superb" and "beautiful"?

According to the buyers and Fairchild, Saint Laurent designed linen bushjacket suits, pleated shirtwaist dresses with blazers and long pleated evening skirts with beaded cardigan jackets.

IRENE SATZ, dress buyer for the U.S. department store chain Ohrbach's, said Saint Laurent showed only two troaser suits and for resort, not street wear.

THE PARIS spring and summer collections included the Lanvin designs, two of which are presented in these tendency sketches from the designer's tablet, featuring pleats and stripes.

Director Of Marin Institute Explains Primal Therapy Concepts

Marin Women

Friday, January 28, 1972 Independent-Journal, 15

A psychiatrist facing a roomful of newly divorced persons is the ultimate in compatability. The divorced person craves knowledge about psychiatry, generally, and although Dr. David Rosen never mentioned divorce or its traumas, his comments and admittedly oversimplified definitions of psychiatric terms were a subtle attempt to give the participants in the Marin Jewish Community Center's Single Again series an insight into themselves.

Rosen's talk, last night, was the fourth in the series offering a creative approach to separation and divorce. He is a director of the Marin Intensive Therapy Institute in San Rafael.

He traced the development of psychiatry from Freud to Fritz Perls, founder of Esalen Institute, whose methods, according to Rosen, are helping people become more aware of what is happening to them right now by making them have imaginary conversations with their parents. From a combination of psychiatric concepts comes primal therapy, a psychiatric method developed in the past four or five years by Dr. Arthur Janoff, a Los Angeles psychiatrist who wrote "The Primal Scream." Rosen's institute specializes in intensive therapy, based on the Janoff theory that all feelings are directed back to one's parents.

"A CHILD is born with the needs to be fed, to be kept warm, to be held, to be touched, to be loved in an unqualified way and to look at his parents' faces and see that his parents are concerned and care about him," Rosen said.

"If his basic needs are not fulfilled he makes an attempt to get them fulfilled. At a young age he will scream. As he gets older he learns to differentiate his needs and the parent learns to interpret them by his cry.

"When the need is not fulfilled over a period of time the pains gets too great and what the child does to tolerate it saves his life but kills him emotionally."

That next step is what Freud called repressing and Janoff calls splitting, the psychiatrist explained.

"From then on he will attempt to stay away from painful feelings. He avoids feeling hurt and will try to fulfill needs in other ways, finding substitutes to keep away from what he needed and didn't get as a child," he said.

THIS IS where primal or intensive therapy comes in, according to Rosen.

The treatment begins with three weeks of social isolation. The patient comes out of his room only for therapy and is kept from all the external distractions that disguise what is really inside himself, Rosen explained.

"Patients have to ask themselves, 'Do I really want to change things enough to experience the pain that is inside?' It is not the answer for everyone," he said.

The goal, according to Rosen, is insight into the origins of our behavior, which gives us the options to change.

"What does bring about the change is to relive the experience that causes us to behave in a neurotic way," he explained.

"Early childhood experiences are ghosts in the closet, which cause repetition of mistakes."

MOST OF the things that affect children happen in the first three years of life, he said, and sensitivity decreases with age.

"A one-day-old child is the most vulnerable, and his vulnerability decreases with each day," he said.

For the parent there is no ideal behavior, and at least 99 per cent of children suffer some sort of deprivation, according to Doctor Rosen.

"It is impossible to fulfill all of a child's needs, and if a parent did the child would be helpless to face the outside world," he said.

He admitted making mistakes with his own children and told the story that he was painting in the garage when his son came in.

"I KNEW he was going to step into a can of paint so I made the move to get the can out of his way and step right into it myself. He just looked at me and said, 'Well, I guess we all make mistakes, Dad.' "

According to Rosen, who, as all primal therapists, has gone through the treatment himself, a person comes through the treatment with the ability to accept the fact that not all of his needs are going to be fulfilled.

"You come out sad but knowing why. The sadness is attached to where it belongs," he said.

This? he said, is very different from depression from an unknown source, which can lead to suicide. — J. L.

If You Enjoy Television Then Take Ads — They Pay The Bill

DEAR HELEN:

Am I a prude?

I watch television with my teen-age and younger children, and see these commercials come on advertising feminine deodorants, and even more personal items, and I cringe.

I now hear that Women's Lib wants birth control advertised on TV. (They're already warning against VD on every station — but this, I admit, makes sense.)

Can't a woman have any privacy? Part of her mystique is her personal hygiene. It doesn't need TV coverage! Moreover, I've recently heard that these feminine deodorants contain ingredients that may be dangerous. — M.J.P.

P.S. Women's Liberation would be more useful if they picketed theaters which showed movies that degrade women, rather than bars which exclude them.

DEAR M.:

(Liberationists seldom picket male bars any more — that was a publicity gimmick. They do go after magazines, entertainment — even columnists — who show male chauvinist tendencies. See letter at end of this column.)

As for TV commercials, you'll have to admit they're quite tasteful — never calling a spade a spade, or even indicating what the real use for the product is. Have you noticed? TV ads plug bathroom cleaners but the commode is conspiciously absent — except for a small unrecognizable part of the rim. Also, you hear deodorant commercials several times an hour, but I've yet to see an underarm in one of these pitches.

My contention is: if you enjoy television, then live with the ads — for they pay the tab. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This is in answer to the girl who was a non-virgin, engaged to a guy who wouldn't take "Yes" for an answer and insisted on waiting until marriage.

I feel she would be unwise to marry him under these circumstances for several reasons: First, if he is hung-up on no pre-marital sex, what does he really, deep-down think of her? Does he respect her or consider her a tramp — because she isn't "pure"? Later on, might his real feelings come out?

Second, if she had enough sexual desire to have indulged in the past, and he has not, she might have a stronger drive than he, and be left unsatisfied in her marriage. Also, if she is relatively experienced and he is not, he might resent her being the "teacher."

My reason for writing is that I had a similar experience. Neither my future husband nor I were virgins. However, he wanted to wait for marriage and I agreed. What a mistake! Had I lived with him before our marriage I would have called it off, much as I loved him. His real personality came out in the marriage bed. He was totally selfish, looked down on any desire on my part, and to put it briefly, these attitudes wrecked our marriage. We were divorced in less than six months, a shattering experience. (He saw no need to change.)

I realize that "trying it out" wouldn't save every marriage, but at least you would learn much about your partner by his (or her) reactions to loving, giving, sharing, enjoying. Too many people are still subconsciously repulsed by sex — and this feeling that it is "dirty" turns their whole lives wrong side out. They say that sex is only a small part of marriage, but if it's all wrong, it can be the most disastrous part. — LEARNED TOO LATE

DEAR HELEN:

I was saddened by your answer to "Hurt," whose husband buys Playboy magazines, and takes business associates to topless bars. How can you laugh off the problem since he is "only a spectator sport"?

Women are people, not scenery. They aren't to be used as sex objects. "Beauty" isn't as important as "character" and a man should not be a voyeur. The women's movement has a long way to go because women like you view themselves as objects rather than human beings. — A.M.

DEAR A.:

Oh, come on — let the guy enjoy life a little. And for heaven's sake, when will you liberationists develop a sense of humor! — H.

This column is dedicated to family living so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Write to Helen Bottel care of the Independent-Journal.

Paris To Be Next Stop

Designer Anne Klein will be the first American to open her own shop in Paris, a reverse on the Parisian designers' trend to establish beachheads in New York for their ready-to-wear collections.

She and three partners plan to locate the store "within a three block radius of Dior," according to Women's Wear Daily. Designer Klein said that the appeal of American fashion has been fantastic to Europeans and regretted that she hadn't opened a store years ago.

They plan to open for fall business in August or September. The quartet is also eying other European cities for their American fashion wares.

ON BEING BLACK

Try A 'Live-In' Coach Next Time

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Coaches, peculiar breed that they are, have a thing about that title. They are consistent and tenacious about referring to one another as "coach." To them it's like being called Mr. President.

Though the cliche is tired, it's true. Dead athletes don't go to that silver stadium in the sky — they are reincarnated as coaches. And because all used-to-be athletes can't become big — (or even little- ) time coaches, competition for these highly coveted positions is tremendously keen.

For many years, blacks who have long excelled in athletics have been excluded from the coaching ranks. Today, only a handful of blacks are coaching professional teams. But the number of blacks on college coaching staffs has increased.

Having observed coaches of many athletic events, it appears that these men fall into a few interesting types:

FOR EXAMPLE, there's "doc." He;s been around gymnasiums all his life, and he still speaks highly of Joe Louis and Jackie Robinson. His gray hair, what's left of it, is neatly cut, and he always wears a conservative suit and tie to the games.

Then, there's "power". He's the young athlete who didn't quite make the pros. He's good and is not about to let anyone forget it. He wears a full beard and big Afro and gives his players the black power salute in praise of a positive maneuver and as symbol of doom for a negative maneuver.

Can't forget the "big shot". He's the coach who is a former all-star, all-record breaker, all-everything. He has tremendous expertise and coaching potential, but has yet to come down from his pedestal to use it.

"Precentage" is the coach who believes less in brute strength than in calculated use of available talent. The other coaches suspect this guy. His hair is cut short — that says something.

Whatever the type, all have in common the goal of winning.

Having a live-in coach on the premises is indeed an experience. One can learn some athletic techniques and jargon for winning certain domestic competitions. Home coaching may go something like this: 30 laps for any kid who neglects to hang up his coat, 150 pushups for an unmade bed. Punish the body; it sharpens the mind.

ANY COACH will tell you it's unwise to become too familiar with team members. So no more of that mommy business: Just call me "coach." No more first names — too personal. "Pick up your rattle, No. 44!" Or use reverse psychology. Call your slowpoke "greased lightning."

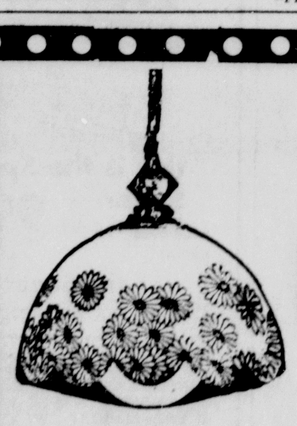

What would really be great (but I haven't managed it yet) would be to have a couple of assistants and a manager. Then I could really glory in being "top dog", while the assistants did the leg work. The manager could see to it that each kid got his milk money and drill the fourth grader on the multiplication tables.

"Six times six is thirty-one? 50 laps, "Dum Dum!"

De Givenchy Line Called Best Ever

The spring and summer collection of Hubert de Givenchy shown in Paris this week was regarded by buyers as one of his best ever. The designer brought back the chemise, Women's Wear Daily reported, and produced some of the newest suits and coat shapes in the fashion capital. Like most of the Paris designers, he showed the full "Easy Pants" with the resort look, using them to open his show Tuesday.

The chemise, he explained, resulted from his mannequins' requests for dresses without belts, and he has done them in Empire and Princess styles.

A First On Broadway Musical State

By NORA E. TAYLOR
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON, Mass. — A small garden where birds twitter and spring flowers bloom in season, where there are quiet contemplative corners and where no public roams.

Does it sound like the depths of the countryside? Well, it's actually just around a couple of corners from Columbus Circle in the heart of New York City. And in the apartments that surround the garden lives Joyce Brown, who likes to sojourn in the garden and read poetry to strengthen her inner serenity.

She must need it. Miss Brown is the conductor who first sent the score of "Purlie" spinning off into the theatrical stratosphere. She has remained with the show directing the rousing, joyous, demanding, varied music nightly for two and a half years and is now traveling with it on its current natiocal tour.

Miss Brown is a Jamaican by birth and a New Yorker by upbringing. She is in a unique position as both a woman and a black of conducting for major Broadway shows. The premiere of "Purlie," indeed, marked the first time a black woman has conducted the opening of a major Broadway show.

But Miss Brown takes that in a very matter-of-fact stride. It is an extension of the work for which she prepared herself at Teachers' College at Columbia, New York College of Music, and New York University School of Education.

"I studied all the instruments in order to be able to orchestrate and compose," she recalled.

SHE PLAYED in the orchestra pit for musicals well before she took over the conducting job or the national company of "Bye, Bye, Birdie." On Broadway she became a replacement conductor for "Golden Boy." She has done musical arrangements for night-club shows in New York and Las Vegas for years. And she worked on the music for the film, "Lovers and Other Strangers."

"All the family is musically inclined," she said during an interview in Boston, where "Purlie" was playing, "my mother, father, sisters, and brothers, but I am the only professional." Nevertheless it was her mother who first trained her in music and conducted her footsteps into the musical side of church work. She is a staunch Episcopalian and for years played the organ for her church, besides conducting the choir from the organ.

ALL THOSE things, though, are just background for a singular career and point of view. She does not feel black, in the sense that black militants speak of it today. Instead she regards all people as simple human beings — no color.

JOYCE BROWN is the conductor who first sent the score of "Purlie" spinning off into the theatrical stratosphere, and she remained to conduct the Broadway show nightly for two-and-a-half years. Now she is conducting the show on its national tour.

(Christian Science Monitor photo)

Playing as she does now for a black show constructed around the story of a "preacher man" at a country church in southern Georgia, which seems more attuned to the revivalist syndrome than anything else, she says, "I have had to learn what they feel and follow to be honest with the score. Our schooling is so different in the Episcopalian faith. But I have learned to be part of it.

"'Purlie' takes in everything," she continued, "religious, gospel, rock, ballads, quasi-classical, rubato, nuances, it's not easy to follow unless you can breathe with it. I love doing it."

And after two and one-half years she still feels fresh and expectant as she faces the orchestra each night. "You have to find new points of interest," she remakred.

Every so often she faces a new house, a new orchestra — she travels with a nucleus of five and the remainder are garnered from the city where the show is playing — and new audiences. In Boston, for instance, she said of those coming to "Purlie":

"The laughter is true laughter. It is not put on. A few people identify with the show, either historically or from their own experience."

SHE REHEARSES each new orchestra for a minimum of six hours, and "if I feel we need extra time they (the producers) will give it to me."

Family life is not entirely at a standstill while she is on tour. Her immediate family came to Boston for Christmas, and Miss Brown cooked for them in her hotel suite. "I won't see the family again until Cleveland," she said, but added, "You should see my telephone bills. And we send tapes to each other." That family sense extends out beyond her immediate relatives. She has friends across the world who pick up the phone at any hour and call her to talk over problems, feelings, or just to assuage a spot of loneliness. "Being a mother hen makes you a human being," she said.

She has not composed music since her school days. But she feels she is reaching the point where that will be her next step.

"Now that I am more seasoned, I think I could. To compose off the top of your head just isn't the way." She pointed out that "European composers think and compose in some quiet place. Here we are continually running. You don't have that peace of mind in order to write."

And so she is planning a trip to Europe after "Purlie" finishes its tour to absorb some of that quieter European atmosphere. "There's a deep well of composition in me," she added, "and I am ready to do it. That is why I want to go to Europe."

THE HONOR SYSTEM

Catching A Soviet Bus Is Frustrating

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MOSCOW — Russians are clamoring for a free transport system. Free in a certain sense, that is.

They would prefer to have a special transit tax levied on their wages each month and to ride the buses and streetcars without paying.

Under the present honor system, in which there are no conductors, the passenger drops his kopecks into a coin collector, turns a knob, and removes a thin paper receipt.

It is often a frustrating experience. Anyone living in Moscow can recount tales of trying to find small change, shoving one's way through a crowd to reach the collection box, and emerging from a bus bereft of a button or a pocket.

Up in arms over this state of affairs, a resident of the Latvian capital of Riga has calculated that the cost of acquiring and servicing the coin machines, printing the tickets sorting the kopecks, and paying the controllers who board the buses and streetcars periodically to check on passengers is almost double the revenue of the city's transport service.

He therefore proposed that the ticket system be abolished and that citizens be charged two rubles a month at their place of work instead. Children, housewives, and old folk would get a free ride.

Recently the spritely Literary Gazette published the Rigan's proposal, and now it reports that it has received more than 300 replies from 60 cities across the country, with the vast majority of responses favorable.

"Charge any tax — only let's get rid of the pesky tickets as fast as possible," writes a citizen of Moscow.

Another Russian muses philosophically: "The principle of paying for a ride inherited from the time of horse carriages is an annoying anachronism in the conditions of socialism."

Transport personnel themselves favor the plan. Officials of Tula, Orenburg, and even the Soviet capital are all for introducing it in one city — Riga, say — by way of experiment.

A few readers, it seems, take objection, arguing, for one, that such a plan would distract from the ultimate Communist goal of a completely free system of transportation.

On the contrary, counters the newspaper, such a measure would be a transitional step that would gradually prepare Russians economically and psychologically for the utopian day when the ride is free.

Federal Flood Help Set For Mill Valley

Flood insurance subsidized by the federal government now may be purchased by Mill Valley property owners, the Department of Housing and Urban Development has announced.

The insurance is available from Southern Marin insurance agents in amounts up to $17,500 for single family houses and up to $30,000 for small businesses and apartments with two to four units.

Rates for structures range from 40 to 70 cents per $100 of insurance, depending on building value, and contents may be insured up to $5,000 with rates from 50 to 60 cents per $100 of insurance for residences and $1 per $100 for small businesses.

Insurance agents should write the Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. in San Francisco for policy forms, rates, manuals and other necessary information.

HUD estimates flood damage in the U.S. amounts to $1 billion annually. In order to become eligible for the insurance program, Mill Valley had to adopt land use control measures designed to guide future development away from flood-prone areas.

Life Term For Triple Slaying

REXBURG, Idaho (UPI)—A 28-year-old man known as "Evil" was sentenced to life in prison Thursday for the slaying of three Mexican-American brothers on a remote Idaho road. Michael Wren Rennpage pleaded guilty two weeks ago to three counts of second degree murder in the shooting deaths near Driggs, Idaho.

His female companion, Joyce Diane Turner Fry, 22, who had "property of Evil" tattooed across her chest, was scheduled to be arraigned Monday on a grand larceny count stemming from the killings.

Misdemeanor Charge Filed

Only a misdemeanor charge of breaking and entering was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Dale Gene Lambert, 23, of San Anselmo.

Lambert was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of burglary when police found him in a dark room at the San Francisco Theological Seminary reading a Bible held upside down.

He pleaded innocent to the misdemeanor charge and a pretrial conference was set for Feb. 2.

Items Taken From A Parked Truck

Tools and a tire, valued at a total of $210, were stolen from the bed of a truck parked at a San Rafael service station yesterday, police reported.

Police said the truck, owned by Clarence B. Smith of San Francisco, was parked at an Arco station atecond and D streets between 1:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

High School Concert Set

The San Rafael High School stage band and jazz ensemble will present its second public concert of the year Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The stage band, conducted by Charlene Wilkerson, a student teacher, will perform a variety of music from rock and ballads to jazz.

Included in the program performed by the jazz ensemble, conducted by music department chairman Terry Summa, will be works written by students.

Child Cyronically Frozen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A "pretty little French Canadian girl," who died at 8 of cancer, has become the first child to be cryonically frozen to await resurrection attempts when science can deal with the disease.

The Cryonics Society of California identified the child as Genevieve de la Poterie of "a suburb of Montreal," daughter of Guy and Pierette de la Foterie.

She died Tuesday at a private hospital, and her body was frozen at a temperature of 275 degrees below zero in liquid nitrogen, said Marshall Neel, a spokesman for the society.

Her parents contacted the society last year when they learned Genevieve was going to die, and arranged for her body to be taken by the society, Neel said, hoping she can be revived if a cure for cancer is found.

The body will be stored with those of more than a dozen frozen adults in one of the society's vaults, located in New Jersey and the Los Angeles area. The society does not reveal the location of the vaults.

Genevieve was "a pretty little French Canadian girl, a brunette," Neel said.

"She didn't know before she died that her body was to be frozen, because her parents didn't tell her the disease was terminal, so they couldn't discuss it," Neel said.

"But she knew about the process, what is entailed and how it worked. She had heard of people being frozen and had talked about the process with her family," he said.

Fish Limit

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI)—Ice fishermen in Maine have a day catch limit of eight whitefish, the state Fish and Game Department reports.

Four Bound To Superior Court

Four persons arrested in a San Rafael drug raid Nov. 9 were bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on charges of possessing marijuana.

They are to be arraigned Feb. 23 in Superior Court.

Walter Jerome Haas, 21, Rebecca Whit Burgwin, 21, Charles Frederick Weck, 21, all of San Rafael, and Sereno Samuel Scranton III, 22, of Santa Barbara, were arrested by agents at a residence at 76 Fair Drive.

About 10 pounds of pot was found at the San Rafael residence, police said.

Mill Valley Resident Hurts Neck In Crash

Marilyn Dalsin, 42, of 18 Escalon Drive, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital at 11:50 a.m. yesterday for an acute neck sprain suffered in an auto accident.

The California Highway Patrol, which is said to have handled the crash, had no details.

Second Nod To Housing, Tennis Club Development

The Fairfax Planning Commission last night approved for the second time a proposal for a housing and tennis club development on a 90-acre parcel off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The commission previously had approved plans for Canon Village and Tennis Club, but they were rejected in November by the city council, which referred the proposal back to the commission.

The plan will be returned to the council if City Atty. Wallace S. Myers decides parking provisions conform to the city's 1966 general plan.

Myer's approval was made a condition of the commission's approval last night.

Commission secretary Ernestine Healy said the revised proposal approved by the commission eliminated two roads and an overflow parking area. If more parking is needed, the commission suggested one of six open tennis courts in the proposal be deleted to provide it.

The proposal approved last night contains two units less than the 128 units approved last year, but the commission recommended that the city council accept an offer by the developers to dedicate 17 acres at the top of a ridge to the city in exchange for city approval for the entire 128-unit project.

The commission also urged the developers to emphasize the Glen Drive entrance to the project, rather than another entrance off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The commission last night also gave a conditional zoning permit for three one-bedroom units to be constructed in an existing structure at Mono Avenue and Bolinas Road, on the condition that owner R. Eric Henderson provide three parking spaces for tenants.

Concert Of Classical Ragas Is Tomorrow

A concert of classical ragas will be performed by G. S. Sachdev, bass bamboo flutist from India, at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Bolinas Community Hall.

Sachdev is a flute teacher at the Ali Akbar College of Music in San Rafael.

Mailliard: Recognize Bangladesh

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth Dist., urged Thursday that the U.S. formally recognize Bangladesh as an independent nation.

He said both the United States and the United Nations have been harshly criticized for their roles in the recent war—the U.S. for allegedly favoring the "wrong side," and the U.N. for not acting in time to prevent bloodshed.

"Whether the U.S. blundered in its policy, and whether the U.N. could have prevented the war, are now moot issues," he said. "The existence of Bangladesh is a fact."

Mailliard said Bangladesh is a desperately poor country which must survive and develop if South Asia is not to continue in turmoil bound to involve confrontation of the great powers.

Economic aid both from the U.N. and from individual countries is needed, he said. Otherwise, he said.

Mailliard's remarks were made in a speech defending the U.N. before the Northern California World Affairs Council and the United Nations Association.

EX-PRESIDENT LYNDON B. JOHNSON
Pondering an interviewer's question

LBJ For Exploring One-Term Presidency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said Thursday a one-term presidency of six years "is worth exploring" and "would probably be in the best interests of the nation."

"If a fellow knew from the beginning that he had a definite limitation and the bell is going to ring at a certain time, he might be able to tackle some of the problems he's inclined to put off," Johnson said.

And at the start of another election year, Johnson said that while he is not particularly eager to get out on the "cold-chicken circuit" again, he is ready to campaign for the Democrats if "it could help my party or help my country."

"Most of the time I think we can better serve our country by letting those who have the responsibility and have the information do it, but if I think it's wrong and it's bad, I will speak up because there were plenty of them who spoke up during my time," he said.

Johnson was interviewed by commentator Walter Cronkite at the LBJ Library at Austin, Tex., for an hour-long show, the third in a series, over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Johnson said he thinks most presidents "have an advantage: even though the decisions may cost them a lot of votes," in running for re-election.

"The power and the respect that the people give that office is a great advantage for an incumbent," he said.

"I'm not sure that we won't come to a single term. I believe that if a man knew that he had just one term and that he had to get everything through in six years, that he didn't have to play to any political group and he didn't ave to satisfy any segment of our society, and this was the only chance he was going to have and he couldn't put it off, I think it would probably—and I say probably—be in the best interests of the nation.

"I would like to see us try it," Johnson said, "although I don't think we're likely to do it right now, but I think it's worth exploring."

Trio Indicted In Murder Case

LAS VEGAS (UPI) —Three Canadians have been indicted on two counts of murder each in connection with the slaying of a San Jose, Calif., couple in a Las Vegas "Strip" motel last month.

The defendants are Claude Joseph Theriault, 27, Lloyd Leonard Paulette, 24, and Robert Gordon Johnstone, 29, all of Edmonton, Alberta.

The grand jury indictments Thursday bypassed the justice court process. Separate preliminary hearings were scheduled for the trio within the next two weeks.

The couple was stabbed numerous times and robbed.

Accident Injuries

Performers featured at the concert with James will be vocalist Rita Graham, drummer Sonny Payner and saxophonists Corky Corcoran and Dick Spencer.

Tickets are available at the box office in the Marin Civic Center auditorium. The Marin concert will be James's only Bay Area performance.

FAMILY

"American Wilderness" — The wildlife which inhabits the American wilderness has been dramatically photographed in an unusual film. Excellent.

"Legend of Sleepy Hollow" — Bing Crosby's voice is heard in commentary and song during this lively and farcical Disney cartoon based on the famous legend.

"Living Desert" — The struggle for survival of the animals and flowers on the American desert remarkably photographed.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Diamonds Are Forever" — James Bond is back again chasing diamond smugglers and villains who plan to blow up the world. Gadgets, sex and violence are all treated as comedy.

"2001: A Space Odyssey" — An outstanding science fiction tale about space travelers and the computer that causes a struggle for survival. Highly imaginative production.

"Z" — Brilliant, electrifying thriller telling true events leading up to the assassination of the man (known as Z) in Greece in 1963.

BORDERLINE
(Most Sources say Adults Only)

"Anderson Tapes" — An ex-convict plans to rob every tenant in an exclusive apartment house unaware that his every move is being recorded on film and tape. Robbery sequence is truly exciting but extremely violent. Nude sex scenes.

"Cisco Pike" — Suspenseful melodrama of corruption. A country blues recording star and drug dealer who is trying to go straight is blackmailed by a corrupt cop. A sad commentary on the death of the counterculture. Nudity, sex and cursing.

"Dirty Harry" — An unsympathetic loner detective pitted against a psychotic killer in San Francisco. Film evades the complex legal problems and moral issues involved when an individual takes justice into his own hands. (Catholic Film Newsletter)

"French Connection" —An excruciatingly exciting and terrifying suspense thriller about two relentless narcotics detectives trying to crack an international heroin smuggling ring. Much violence.

"The Go-Between" — A turn of the century English love story between a high-born girl and a tenant farmer as seen through the eyes of a 12-year-old boy who serves as their messenger. Beautiful photographed but one very explicit sex scene.

"Harold and Maude" — Offbeat film about a love affair between a neurotic young man and an 80-year-old woman.

"The Straw Dogs" — A young American and his wife come to a quiet, remote English village to get away from all that is wrong about modern life. Film is a detailed study of the extreme violence and brutality of which man is capable. Critics are divided as to whether the director exploits violence by showing it in such ecplicit detail or whether he shows it to prove its ugliness. Long rape scene. (National Council of Churches)

"There's A Girl in My Soup" — Peter Sellers a wealthy bachelor amuses himself with many women confident he is impervious to falling in love until he meets Goldie Hawn. Some nudity.

ADULTS ONLY

"All the Loving Couples" — Story of upper-middle-income home where four married couples gather for a wife swapping party. Film makes point that the game of infidelity is not a very happy one.

"The Loved Ones" — Crude vulgarization of Evelyn Waugh's novel satirizing American undertaking practices. Its overdone tastelessness becomes utterly repugnant.

"Seventeen" — Danish film about a teen-age boy sent by his father to visit relatives and given opportunity to gain his manhood by associations with the household maids.

"200 Motels" — Rock group called "The Mothers of Invention" has compiled a horrendous concoction of abstract impressions employing the most advanced cinematic techniques. Obscene language and nudity are the main features. Confusing and tedious.

Low Cost Plan On Detergents

NEW YORK (UPI)—A low cost method of removing 80 per cent of detergent phosphates from municipal sewage has been found, Allied Chemical Co. announced Thursday.

The method had been successfully tested in Michigan City, Ind., and Mayor Randall C. Miller of that city has estimated the cost at about $1.25 a year per resident, the company said.

The method requires equipment costing about $100,000, but no investment in new sewage treatment plants, according to Allied.

The phosphates are absorbed by feeding either aluminum sulfate or ferric chloride in the sewage at the end of the secondary treatment process, the company said.

Couldn't Hide It

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) —Keith Robinson was convicted Thursday of shoplifting 400 cigarettes, a can of salmon and a can of crab from a supermarket and hiding the stolen goods in his hollow wooden leg.

Water Bed Afficionados: Beware Of High Living

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government has cautioned against waterbeds, and high living.

Carefully sidestepping the advertised virtues of the beds, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) says the roughly 2,000 pounds of water it takes to fill most beds could cause poorly constructed upper floors to collapse.

And water leaking from low quality beds could also cause property damage to floors below and start electrical fires, HUD says.

In an advisory pamphlet, HUD told managers of public housing projects and other federally assisted housing they may ban the beds from upper floore if they do not feel the construction can stand the extra weight.

A spokesman stressed this was not an outright ban, but gave local officials and landlords the right to bar their use if they felt their structures might not hold up under the stress.

Privately owned housing is not affected by the warning but the agency said anyone buying the beds should be aware of their possible hazards.

"This isn't a problem in the bigger cities where they have pretty good building codes," a HUD official said, "but our program extends to small areas where the codes might not provide for these loads."

The official said the policy was strictly "a precautionary measure.

The pamphlet was published under authority of Norman V. Watson, HUD Assistant Secretary for Housing Management.

It advised executive directors and project managers of local public housing units and owners and managers of othar federally assisted housing that "water beds are not to be permitted in any dwelling unit unless floors are known to have been designed to safely withstand the loads imposed."

NEWS CONFERENCE — Santa Clara County Sherifff James Geary, in a news conference yesterday, repeated an earlier statement that Miss Davis should be released on bail, but that he based that belief on the fact that he didn't have any evidence in the case.

Teacher In A Victory In Pot Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The state District Court of Appeal has ruled that a teaching credential cannot be revoked merely for conviction on a charge of marijuana possession.

A three-judge panel issued the decision Wednesday in the case of Arthur T. Coming, whose credential was revoked in 1969 while he was teaching at Berkeley. He had been convicted of the charge two years earlier in San Diego.

The court noted both the "degree of remoteness" between the conviction and revocation and the fact the record contained no evidence Coming's conduct "adversely affected students of fellow teachers."

Paul Halvonik, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the court "placed no stock in the department of education's charge that marijuana possession is an act 'involving moral turpitude, immoral and unprofessional conduct.'

"Instead, they pointed out that the only proper grounds for revoking a credential is substantial evidence that an individual is not fit to teach. Mere possession of marijuana does not demonstrate any such unfitness."

Angela Backers: Court Too Small

SAN JOSE (UPI)—The Sheriff of Santa Clara County said Thursday that he was providing security for Angela Davis under court order and that the precautions would not prevent her from having a "fair trial."

A group of her supporters, however, protested that a small courtroom with only 59 seats was being used, most of them reserved for the news media and family members. They said the public should be given better access to the proceedings.

Sheriff James Geary held a news conference and said the former UCLA philosophy instructor, awaiting trial in the Palo Alto jail on murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges, had been "no escape risk to us."

"We have taken her for long walks, transported her to various places, includcng San Francisco, and there have been no overt acts or indications that she might try to escap."

"However, this does not mean that someone might not sometime attempt a rescue or that people on the other side might not try to take her life," Geary said. "I am concerned with her safety and well-being."

Geary told newsmen during the conference, called to discuss statements he made during a recent meeting with the black militant's supporters, that he had no direct contact with Miss Davis but others in his department felt they had achieved rapport.

"Some time back she was exercising with the prisoners from the women's quarters and seemed to enjoy it. They mingled and played volley ball," the sheriff said.

Geary denied that he told supporters of Miss Davis that she could not get a fair trial "anywhere."

"What I said, in discussing security measures, was that if you believe these measures keep her from getting a fair trial, then she would be unable to get a fair trial anywhere because the security would be the same."

He said Miss Davis' quarters in the San Jose jail would be ready when her final pre-trial motions begin next Monday. Security construction of crowd control barriers and fences will also be completed by then, he said.

Andy Montgomery, representing 15 organizations supporting Miss Davis, said that his group and others have received "no response" for a request that closed circuit television viewing be furnished for the public because of the limited space in the courtroom.

"We would probably relax if we could get it fixed so that 100 or 200 of the public could see the trial over the closed TV circuit," he said.

Theft Suspect Is Bound Over

Paul K. McSweeney, 24, of San Francisco, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of robbery.

He is to be arraigned Monday in superior court.

WORD-A-DAY

Water Rate Hike May Bring Suit

A San Francisco attorney representing a group of Bolinas businessmen has threatened to sue the Bolinas Community Public Utility District over increases in water rates he considers "discriminatory."

Vernon L. Bradley, owner of a Bolinas restaurant, said the new rates approved by the district board Saturday result in a 300 per cent increase for some commercial users of water.

The new rates are $10 for the first 1,000 cubic feet of water and 75 cents per 100 cubic feet thereafter, compared to old rates of 87 for the first 1,000 cubic feet, 50 cents per 100 cubic feet up to 3,000 and 35 cents per 100 cubic feet thereafter.

Bradley complained about the rates atthe board's Wednesday meeting but no action was taken on the matter, clerk Helen McKay reported.

If the rates, due to take effect in Feburary, are not rolled back, Bradley said, he will sue to have them reversed under court decisions holding "arbitrary, confiscatory and discriminatory" charges illegal.

In other business, the board voted to write the Marin County Board of Supervisors opposing the designation of Bolinas Lagoon as a wildlife refuge and not as a "harbor of refuge" for ships in distress.

The supervisors Tuesday struck from the proposed Bolinas Lagoon plan a provision that the harbor serve as a refuge port.

$610,000 Estate By Pianist

Heynemann died Jan. 15.

In a will dated last June 30, Heynemann left $3,900 to a brother and 20 friends, his real property and household goods to a son, James A. Heynemann of San Francisco, and established a trust for a daughter, Ruth P. Heynemann of Clovis, Fresno County.

Heynemann's father was president and owner of Heynemann and Co., of San Francisco, maker of Can't Bust 'em overalls. Young Heynemann, however, drifted away from the business and began a career as a concert pianist in 1922.

Hostel Plan For Hikers Is Endorsed

A proposal from the American Youth Hostel to create overnight lodging facilities for hikers at the Laguna Ranch at Point Reyes National Seashore has been endorsed by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission.

The commission, which serves as an advisory board to the National Park Service, said, however, the facilities would have to be open to anyone and not just members of the hiking group.

Youth Hostel is a worldwide organization which promotes hiking and nature study.

Its proposal, which must be approved by the park service, is to turn the ranch houses at the Laguna Ranch into sleeping quarters for 20 to 40 persons.

The commission Wednesday also proposed opening the youth hostel facilities for environmental education classes from local schools.

Kentfield Fire Board To Fill Vacant Beat

A vacant seat on the Kentfield Fire Protection District board will be filled Tuesday from among four applicants including the last election's two unsuccessful candidates and a board member's wife.

The board reviewed the applications Wednesday night to find a successor to James J. Hausle, who moveF'from the district, and set a meeting for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the firehouse to choose one, according to Assist. Chief Robert G. Mariani.

Applicants Sara S. Tuckey, 68, of 16 Evergreen Drive, and Edward M. Powell, 38, a telephone techniciac who lives at 202 Kent Avenue, were defeated in the Nov. 2 election.

The other two applicants are the wife of board member Arthur L. Poganski and Ray Vogel, of 11 Ash Avenue, who runs a janitorial service.

The board also agreed to purchase $200 worth of tools and approved a $2,100 bid by Western Waterproofing Co. to seal leaks in the roof of the district's 3-year-old fire station, Mariani said.

Better Business Bureau Will Seat Directors

Eight Bay Area businessmen have been elected to three-year terms on the Board of Directors of the Better Business Bureau of San Francisco.

Chosen were William H. Banker of Coldwell, Banker and Co.; Wishard A. Brown, publisher of the Independent-Journal; Howard I. Lasky, Sears Roebuck and Co.; Barry Livingston, Livingston Brothers; Richard W. Nugent, F.W. Woolworth and Co.; Richard M. Oster, United Vintners; Roland G. Saysette, Del Monte Corp., and Paul Speegle, Recorder Printing and Publishing Co.

The new directors will be installed at the annual membership luncheon Feb. 4 at the Hilton Hotel, San Francisco.

University Looking For 'Real Witch'

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI)—The University of the Pacific is looking for a witch or a woman with "unusual psychic powers."

The woman is needed to help conduct a course on extrasensory perception, the university said Thursday. The person selected would assist Dr. Douglas Matheson, chairman of the Psychology Department.

So Good, But Not The Grape

PARIS (UPI)—When two burglars finished looting Marcel Ferrer's home, they decided to sample his wine before departing.

They guzzled several bottles before reaching for what appeared to be the last one and drank that, too.

As the last drop vanished, Ferrer returned home and said, "you are drinking my hairgrowing lotion."

Police said neither of them suffered any ill effects.

NO ONE BOARDING — Once a bustling depot, the Northwestern Pacific Railroad station at the east end of Grant Avenue stands alone as if waiting for passengers — who haven't been coming since it closed in 1959. When the station was built in 1917, it spurred the growth of downtown Novato, but now it serves mainly as a reminder of the past.

CONCERNED CITIZENS' DRIVE

Novato: Preserving The Past

DAILY Independent-Journal Est. 1861
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1972 23

By FRANK FARRARA

The Reichert Villa, one of Novato's oldest homes, stands dilapidated, ravaged by time and vandals, half hidden by tract houses and bearing the air of a haunted house.

Its once-architecturally ornate stable is falling down and the landscape around the home at the eastern end of Lamont Avenue is cluttered with junk cars.

An eyesore to anyone, the house is an ill omen to a group known as Citizens to Preserve Novato's Landmarks, and a symbol of the fate that might befall city landmarks.

One who speaks sadly when he talks of the abandoned villa is Wilfred H. Lieb, a rancher who lives at 1521 Hill Road. Lieb is a native Novatan and interested in the community's heritage, despite his relative youth — he is 48.

Lieb's eyes twinkle when he recalls days gone by in Novato, and he grows forceful when he speaks of the need to preserve a bit of the past.

While the Riechert Villa, together with such landmarks as the Northwestern Pacific Railroad depot and Trumbull mansion, among others, have captured the interest of the citizen group, the residents have an immediate target — saving the city's first post office, a small, New England-style building now occupied by a family.

Built in the middle of the last century, the old post office building stands neatly painted, reddish brown and yellow, on heavily-traveled South Novato Boulevard. Bobo Fabian, a developer who plans to remove the structure to make way for an apartment development, has offered it to the city, but no action has been taken since his offer would require the city to move it.

It was in an area, Lieb said, where barge captains mingled with ranchers shipping their fruit, milk and butter to San Francisco, and where the Old Town Saloon, the Halfway House, the first home of Our Lady of Loretto Church and Peter Nave's vegetable farm were located.

The citizen group has suggested that an organization such as a "Novato historical society, a landmarks commission or historic treasure committee" be formed to work for preservation of buildings such as the first post office.

Because its architecture is similar to city hall, the first post office "would be ideal for a city museum" on property set aside for a civic center, said the secretary of the citizen group, Mjrgaret Coady.

The group has a working force of a handful of citizens and a mailing list of about 85 persons, including relatives and descendants of those buried at the old Novato Cemetery at Pioneer Memorial Park.

They organized about four years ago, in fact, to preserve the cemetery after vandals had toppled tombstones. The city, at that time, had plans to replace the stones with a single memorial plaque atop of the cemetery knoll.

After a long battle, the plaque idea was dropped and the city this fiscal year appropriated $13,000 in the hope of obtaining federal matching funds for restoration of the cemetery.

The broken headstones are stored at the city corporation yard "to avoid further vandalism," Lieb said. They will be returned to the cemetery when the restoration job is done.

"When we started, the cemetery was in a pretty sad state," he said.

Now, the depot windows are boarded up and the letters "Novato" on the wooden station sign are weathering away. Passenger service ended Jan. 3, 1959, and the depot served as the city's first police station in 1960-61.

When he was a youth, "The train station was very busy," Lieb said. "Students would take the train to go to San Rafael High School, people would get shipments from Montgomery-Ward and Sears at the station . . . the cheese factory would ship through the depot . . . you could go to Sausalito and take the ferry to San Francisco or go north as far as Willits."

The old depot isn't in imminent danger, according to Lieb, but "some idea will have to be advanced to preserve it."

To a passerby, it seems to be only the Novato Trading Co., a rambling collection of grey clapboard buildings and fencing with signs saying "furniture" and "mattresses."

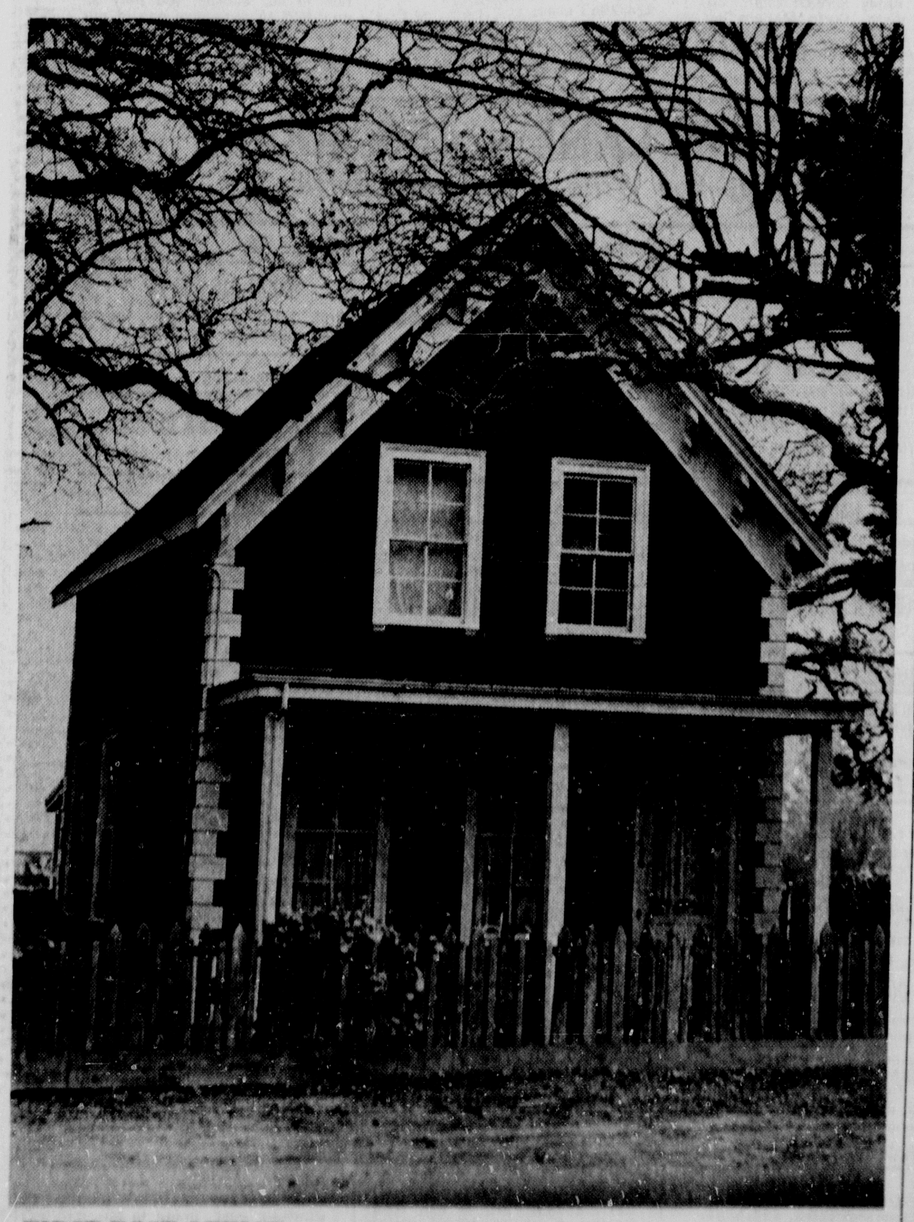

The core of the main building, however, is what was once the original Novato School, built possibly as early as 1862 when the Novato School District was formed.

The citizen group doesn't have any specific plan or method in mind to preserve the landmarks, but has brought up the matter to generate ideas, Lieb said.

"We want to make poeple aware of these landmarks and get ideas," he said.

They agree with the philosophy expressed by a granddaughter of Sweetser, who said the old Cemetery should be preserved "not only just for us, but new generations of Novatans so they will have a link with the past. Old California is slipping away. It's important for us to have a sense of what we were."

FIRST POST OFFICE — A modest New England-style home at 1486 South Novato Boulevard was Novato's first post office in the mid-1900s and the center of community activity in the days when barges sailed up Novato Creek. It is in danger of being removed for an apartment development.

Antiques—1605

A WELL known department store is having an Oriental carpet sale this month. We only mention this because our regular everyday prices are lower than their sale prices. For instance? their sale price for an Indian Ming, 9x12, is $439, we sell the same high quality carpet regularly for $350. We also rent carpets. Live with it for awhile, if you want to keep it, we'll apply the rental to the purchase price. You can't go wrong. We are located in "The Collective," in San Anselmo, next to the Tamalpais Theater and we are open 7 days a week.

3 bdrm. home of good quality and pleasing design. Spacious living room. Spacious master bdrm. suite. Open formal dining room. 1 of the bdrms. is particularly well suited for a study with a built-in desk, book shelves and an open beam ceiling. The living room also has an open beam ceiling and is enhanced by a floor to ceiling used brick fireplace, and a beautiful view of Mt. Tamalpais.

The patio is all brick and has a handsome outdoor fireplace. The garden blooms with hundreds of camellias and rhododendrons in their season plus other flowering shrubs and is backed by evergreens and giant oaks.

The quiet privacy and beauty surrounding this home is quite remarkable, especially when one considers the convenience of community and nearness of schools and other essential facilities. $55,000.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Careful When Shooting Starts

When the shooting starts, head for cover. Bill Bystander got caught in a riot crossfire. He was shot in the head. The bullet came from the rifle of a National Guardsman brought in to quell the disturbance.

Bill sued the government saying that there was not proper control of the guardsmen. He said the use of firearms was negligent and that the orders about when to shoot were vague and ambiguous.

Bill was an innocent bystander. Still, the government is not liable. Since early days of common law, both private persons and officials have the right to use force in a riot. So long as the force is reasonable, those injured may not sue those who try to suppress the riot.

The Federal Tort Claims Act permits private persons to sue the government when it is negligent. But when the government acts in a discretionary capacity, there is no liability for its negligent acts. Calling in the National Guard and using force to suppress a riot is discretionary and up to the government.

In another case the cokrt ordered integration of a public school. U.S. Marshals were called in to enforce the couro order. One protestor got in the way of a marshal's nightstick. He sued the government. The court ruled that the protestor had no right to sue: "The task of carrying out the orders of the court and of handling an unruly mob are the responsibilities of the Attorney General. So is the choice of means for performing these tasks," said the court.

A person who stays around when there is an order to disperse from an illegal assembly invites arrest. Failure to disperse is punishable by six months in jail or a fine. Taking part in an unlawful assembly is a separate offense. So is disturbing the peace and trespass.

As a rule, police, firemen, and correctional officers have broad immunity from liability. State law makes them liable for some acts of negligence or flagrant abuses of discretion.

SPORT NOTES

Lean Pickings Seen In NFL Draft

By RALPH CHATOIAN

With the National Football League player draft right around the corner — next Tuesday and Wednesday — owners and scouts of the 26 NFL teams seem to be in agreement: It's a lean year for talent.

Sure, there are some top-notch players, but not enough of them, say the scouts. There won't be too many rookies beating out the veterans next year if what the scouting reports say is true.

One such person very close to the scouting and drafting scene gave me his Top 10 list and said from there the talent drops off quickly. One big name player who isn't high on any of the scouting reports is Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan, Auburn quarterback.

"He's too short at 6-foot and besides, he spreads his feet too far apart when he passes and that reduces his height even more," says one scouting report. (These guys are thorough in their player evaluation.)

THE SURPRISE pick who will go early is Chester Marcol of Hillsdale College in Michigan. Chester who? Hillsdale where? Marcol is a Hungarian emigrant who does great things with his right foot. In a time when kicking is so important, a guy like Marcol can be the difference in a close game. Look what Garo Yepremian did for Miami this past season.

The report on Marcol, a soccer style kicker, is that he is a deadly field goal kicker from the 40-yard range, has booted a 62-yarder, several of 50 plus, sails most of his kickoffs out of the end zone, and punts for a 43-yard average.

Here's the Top 10 list given to me: running back Bobby Moore of Oregon; flanker Terry Beasley of Auburn; defensive back Tommy Casanova of LSU; defensive end Walt Patulski of Notre Dame; offensive lineman Lionel Antoine of Southern Illinois; defensive back Bobby Majors of Tennessee; linebacker Willie Hall of USC; linebacker Tom Graham of Oregon; defensive back Willie Buchanon of San Diego State; defensive tackle Sherm White of California.

ALL TEAMS want to draft good quarterbacks but it wasn't a good year for this commodity in the college ranks. First QB to go will probably be John Reaves of Florida.

According to my source, who wished to remain anonymous, Jim Sherbert of Terra Linda, Oregon State defensive end, will probably be drafted in the first half. Stanford All-American linebacker Jeff Siemon was also listed in the top half, but San Jose State linebacker Dave Chaney in the second half. Like Siemon, Stanford quarterback Don Bunce should go high, somewhere in the top four rounds, says my source.

MICHIGAN SHOULD be the team that leads in number of players drafted, but it will be nothing like Ohio State's showing last year of four players in the first round of picks.

The position in the college ranks with the most talent seems to be defensive back. That's where the 49ers went last year (remember Tim Anderson?) but maybe the Niners can get their first pick to sign this time.

According to latest reports, both the 49ers and Raiders have put receivers on their No. 1 priority list.

Garner Triggers Win, 57-50

By LEW CODDINGTON

After new faces and unsung heroes had dominated the game for 28 minutes, Will Garner ended a short spell on the bench and began a fourth-quarter rally that carried Tamalpais High School to a 57-50 victory over San Rafael last night.

The triumph, accomplished before an overflow crowd at San Rafael High, gave the Indians a 7-0 record at the halfway mark in Marin County Athletic League basketball play. They lead their nearest rivals, San Rafael and Redwood, by two full games.

FOULS ABOUND

The game was marred by 39 personal fouls, and six players drew four or more, including Garner, who sat out a stretch in the fourth period and returned with about four minutes left — just in time to see guard Pat Locey sink two free throws and pull the Indians within one point, 45-44.

With 3:57 left, Garner grabbed an offensive rebound and sank a shot to put Tam ahead, 46-45. Twenty seconds later, he snatched a defensive rebound and then hit a turnaround jump shot for 48-45. Jared McFerrin, also laboring under four fouls, hit a jumper for 50-45 with 3:06 remaining, and San Rafael could never recover.

"Mike Dinehart and Castroma Dickens played excellent basketball for us," said Tam coach Bernie Schneider, reeling off two names of several unsung Tam stars.

DINEHART

Dinehart grabbed 12 rebounds, including nine defensive boards, tying Garner as high man. He scored eight points, including three straight jumpers from the same spot in the left corner in the third quarter. A sophomore, he responded well when foul-induced substitutions left him as Tam's only big man for a five-minute stretch.

"Dickens hit a key free throw and basket (following a steal)," said Schneider, "and played good defense and settled us down offensively." He subbed for Garner in the fourth quarter.

Guard John Johnson scored nine points, scooped up some loose balls and grabbed some key rebounds. McFerrin scored 10. Garner was limited to 14, ten below his average, by San Rafael's tight 1-2-2 zone defense. Wayne Lechner and Donnie Canfield played in front of Garner and prevented Tam from feeding him.

CANFIELD

Canfield scored 18 points mostly on outside jumpers, to lead all scorers. Both he and Wayne Lechner had to play with four fouls, as did San Rafael guards Jerry Molinari and Kenny Mallett.

Jeff White, another unsung hero, came off the bench to score nine points and add vital speed to San Rafael's attack.

CRASHING BOARDS

Marin Tars, West Valley Cagers Vie

Legend has it that the plodding tortoise bested its sprinter rival, but the question remains if the deliberate College of Marin Tar basketball machine, 18-2, can hold off the fast-breaking West Valley Vikings from Campbell, 13-7.

Second place in the Camino Norte Conference title chase will be the reward when the two teams collide at 8 p.m. Saturday on the Tars' court. Both squads sport a 4-1 CNC mark. Contra Costa College of San Pablo leads the pack with a 5-0 record.

Coach John Panagakis eighth-ranked junior college aggregate pits its "patient attack" led by guard Joe Smith and center Roosevelt Green against the Vikings' dashing delegation. Smith has pumped home 79 points in CNC affairs for a 15.8 average; Green has produced 74 points and a 14.8 per game figure. Smith and Green are third and fourth, respectively in CNC scoring.

Although the Vikings, 20th rated in the state, can not match Marin's balanced scoring quality, the visitors do have one paramount asset — speed. The campbell basketballers are a scrambling, hustling unit geared to forcing mistakes. They trigger turnovers by pressing the opposing team's guards.

"I admit that we had trouble with Dave Blasquez (of De Anza College of Cupertino) Saturday night," Panagakis stated but the Vikings can't match that man's quickness."

"They really hustle, but then so does their veteran forward Butch Romero," the Tar coach added. Hot shooting forward Jim Smreker is another Viking notable.

Thurmond, Warriors Edge Bulls

PORTLAND (UPI) —Nate Thurmond's anger and skill made up for Jeff Mullins' absence.

With Thurmond, a 6-11 center, hitting for 31 points and grabbing 20 rebounds, the Golden State Warriors nipped the Chicago Bulls 108-107 Thursday night for their 13th win in their last 14 outings.

Mullins, the Warriors' high-scoring guard, missed the game because he was in Kentucky for the funeral of an uncle. But Mullins will be back on the court tonight in Portland when the Golden Staters meet the Trail Blazers in a game televised back to the Bay Area.

Ever since he was snubbed for the NBA All Star Thurmond has been nothing less of sensational. He has become more determined and aggressive on the boards. Against the Bulls he repeatedly shunted aside taller Tom Boerwinkle, Bob Love and Chet Walker to control both boards.

In his last 15 games, the Warrior center has averaged 23.5 points and 17 rebounds. He also became the ninth player in NBA history to collar 10,000 rebounds after he got his fourth early in the game.

The victory was a team effort. Mullins scored 43 points against Chicago on Monday night in the Windy City but the Bulls whipped the Warriors to snap an 11-game win streak.

In addition to Thurmond, Jim Barnett and reserve guard Fritz Williams were the big heroes Thursday night. Barnett hit two free throws with 55 seconds left for the margin of victory and Williams picked up some of the slack caused by Mullins' absence with a 20-point contribution.

FOR TARKENTON

New York Gets Five Players

By VITO STELLINO

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fran Tarkenton is going "home" with the assignment of leading the Minnesota Vikings back to the Super Bowl.

The Vikings, who swapped Tarkenton to the New York Giants five years ago for four draft choices, Thursday night brought him back at the cost of three players and two draft choices with only one of them—wide receiver Bob Grim—a regular.

Grim, quarterback Norm Snead and rookie running back Vince Clements, sidelined last year with a knee injury, were sent to the Giants along with the Vikings' No. 1 pick in next week's draft and the No. 2 pick the 1973 draft.

ERRATIC OFFENSE

The Vikings, who own one of the best defenses in pro football but have been betrayed by an erratic offense, were led to the Super Bowl by Joe Kapp two years ago before he jumped the team. The last two seasons, the Vikings had 12-2 and 11-3 marks but were beaten in the first playoff game.

Tarkenton, who lives in Atlanta and starred at the University of Georgia, spent his first six seasons with the Vikings before being traded to the Giants after his differences with former coach Norm Van Brocklin reached the breaking points.

YEARS AWAY

Since the Giants are years away from being a contender and Tarkenton wants to play on a winner before he retires, he was thrilled at the trade. Although Tarkenton was well-liked by New York fans, he infuriated Giant owner Wellington Mara when he left the club in a contract dispute before the first exhibition game.

"I'm just delighted," Tarkenton said at his Atlanta home, "I really am excited about playing in Minnesota again. I've got so many friends up there I started out with. It's a championship team."

Although the trade is expected to make the Vikings a preseason favorite to win the Super Bowl, most of the Vikings were surprised and cautious when they were informed of the trade.

"They've been saying we're supposed to win it all for the last three years," defensive linemen Jim Marshall said. "We'll just have to do the best we can."

ARY LARSEN

Gary Larsen, another member of the Vikings' front four, was notified of the trade in Great Falls, Mont., where he was with six other Vikings who are members of the team's traveling basketball team. Larsen said, "the most shocking thing is that we gave up a great receiver like Grim. But there's no doubt that Fran is a great quarterback."

Dave Osborne, who played with Tarkenton in the Vikings' backfield for two years, said, "Fran always scored a lot of points but we didn't have defense then. At New York, he still didn't have a defense. If he's capable of scoring points, I think we've got the defense now. Fran was sell-liked here and he has a lot of friends. I'm sure the fans will be happy to see him back."

DIFFERENT VIEWS

Gary Cuozzo and Bob Lee, the two quarterbacks Tarkenton will displace, had different reactions. Cuozzo, who has played out his option, said, "nothing I say is going to help me." Lee said, "I'm the guy who started the last game and I figure if somebody comes in, he's gonna have to beat me out."

Giant Coach Alex Webster said the "main reason" the Giants made the trade was "to strengthen our team, not only for 1972 but for the future. We thought we would rather move in that direction than to stand pat with last year's team untouched."

Webster said that Randy Johnson would most likely be the No. 1 quarterback if the season opened tomorrow but he said that Johnson, Snead and Ed Baker, who taxied last season all will have a shot at replacing Tarkenton.

Howard Mudd Joins Cal Bear Coaching Staff

BERKELEY (UPI) —Howard Mudd, a former All Pro guard with the San Francisco 49ers, has been hired as an offensive line coach at the University of California.

Mudd's career as a pro football player was coming to an end after eight seasons due to a knee injury. He had been traded to the Chicago Bears in 1969.

"I enjoyed my professional career immeasurably," said Mudd, "but I have a yearning to coach ... to get involved with young people."

San Diego Open Paced By Littler

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Gene Littler had no trouble putting while Jack Nacklaus did, and that's why today the little local pro has the lead in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open while the blond bomber is back in the pack.

Littler, who lives only a few miles up the road from Torrey Pines, site of the San Diego Open, rolled in eight birdy putts in the opening round Thursday enroute to a six under par 66. He made two birdy putts of 20 feet and another from 15 feet.

Nicklaus, who won four of the last five tournaments he played in last year and then debuted this year by taking the Crosby Clambake, missed 10 putts inside of 15 feet and wound up with a one over 73.

STRONG WIND

Littler went out early in the morning when the course was in perfect condition and the weather almost as nice. When Nicklaus got underway, close to noon, a strong wind came up off the Pacific and the greens became hard as cement.

"Everything I hit went in," said Littler. "I haven't putted this well in a long, long, time. I guess it was because I went back to my old putter."

The putter in question is the same one Littler used for eight years and then put away five years ago. He hauled it out of the garage the other day because the replacement putter, so he said had gone sour.

HIT WELL

"I hit the ball well," said Nicklaus who led everyone on the tour last year with close to a quarter million dollars in earnings. "I drove straight and long but the greens became very hard. They were difficult to putt on and I didn't make any putts."

Between Littler, who goes off late today, and Nicklaus, who goes off early, are more than 50 players. Closest to Littler, who won the Colonial and Monsanto opens last year, are Jim Colbert, Paul Harney and Japan's Takashi Murakami. Those three shot opening round four under 68s.

JOHN SCHLEE

Twenty-one players are at 71 and 12 at even par 72. In all, 41 players among the starting field of 144, broke par over the 6,808 yard layout alongside the Pacific.

CUT

The cut will be made to the low 70 and ties after today's second round and the weather will have as much to do about where the cut will be set as anything else.

Billy Casper, another former San Diego Open champ, was in a big group at 73 along with Nicklaus while Lee Trevino, who is having trouble putting, is at two over 74.

MILLER BARBER

The 74 group also includes Miller Barber, who beat George Archer on the 21st extra hole last Monday for the Tucson Open title. Barber complained he was bone tired "from playing all that golf last week."

Archer, the defending San Diego champ, didn't come back this year. He's home in Gilroy, nursing a heavy cold.

Tam Travels To Home Games

By LEW CODDINGTON

"Home sweet road."

This is the new motto of the Tamalpais High School basketball team, which plays its "home" games at College of Marin in Kentfield after fire marshalls forced the school to stop using its own gym for games last year.

Having a home court about 10 miles away from the school presents a few problems, but students and players at Tam are adjusting to the situation and don't seem too terribly upset about it.

The difficulty everybody anticipated, getting students to the games, never materialized. "We have increased attendance due to the availability of parking and room to be seated," said athletic director Al Ahlsten.

"We've been averaging 750 per game, and we haven't had our biggest attraction (Redwood) yet," he said. "In the old gym, we could only get 600, and that later was cut to 500." College of Marin seats 1,300.

"The students are on their own as far as getting there is concerned," he continued. "But most students these days have cars or can prevail on their parents for cars. The school provides no transportation, since our transportation budget was cut in half this year."

Basketball coach Bernie Schneider has mixed emotions about the situation. "It's a great place to play," he said. "It's a beautiful plant. But it's just not right for a school not to have its own gym.

"Attendance is good now, but the team is contending for the championship. If we ever have a mediocre team in the future, students might be less willing to travel the extra distrnce, especially with interest in athletics declining."

Ahlsten disagreed on this point. "We have always had good spirit and interest at Tam," he said, "and I don't think this will be a problem."

Tam's switch to College of Marin marked the end of the really severe home-court advantage in Marin County Athletic League basketball. All the gyms now are new, modern and well-lit, with no dead spots in the floor or strange shadows on the court. The boxed-in structure and "snake-pit" atmosphere are gone.

Tam still practices in the old gym, and actually sees its "home" court much less often than a normal team does. It may be only coincidence, but the Indians had to struggle manfully to eke out victories in their last two College of Marin games against Novato and San Marin, who have a combined 2-10 MCAL record.

Still, not much can be done. "The powers that be have made it clear that a new gym will not be built tomorrow," said Ahlsten. "The status of funds in most districts is such that we can't say optimistically when it will be bulit."

HEY ST. JUDE — Marin Catholic's basketball team has taken over the undisputed league lead in injuries. Latest victims are guard Ben Partee, who broke his leg and will be out for the year, and forward Dan Mahoney, who will miss two weeks with an ankle sprain.

Previously, guard Jim Sullivan had missed two games with the flu and forward-guard Tim Stone one. Stone also sprained his ankle Tuesday, but probably will play tomorrow. "It's like Medicare," muttered coach Dave Gonsalves.

EASTERN INVADERS — The eighth spot in basketball's Tournament of Champions will be filled from now on by the champion of the Central Section of the California Interscholastic Federation, tournament officials announced yesterday.

The section is composed of 57 schools in the Fresno-Bakersfield area. Right now, the best teams over there look like East Bakersfield (13-1) and San Joaquin Memorial (15-2). The top team out of 57 has got to be tough, even though Memorial lost to Sacred Heart of San Francisco, which in turn was beaten by Redwood in December.

The other seven qualifiers are from San Francisco, the East Bay, and the MCAL. This year's TOC will be held March 9-11 in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

WINDHAM'S WOMAN

Even the presence of Karen Wise (center) couldn't help Windham College of Putney, Vt., Wednesday night, as Franklin Pierce College was a hair better and won the game at Rindge, N.H., 85-57. Miss Wise hails from Gatesville, Md., and is the only girl on Windham's team.

Redwood Cagers Tip Terra Linda, 62-39

By PAUL CANEC

Outside shots by Sam Farb and Tim Hennessy broke open an effective zone defense in Larkspur last night, as the Redwood High School Giants outgunned the Terra Linda Trojans 62-39.

The zone, designed by Trojan coach Bob Corley to "keep that Steve McGee away from the backboard," brought Terra Linda to a narrow first-quarter lead before Farb, the Giants playmaker, and Hennessy warmed the cold spell with consistent outside shooting.

Farb, according to Redwood coach Dick Hart, not only shined on offense, but also in defending John Buckley, who led Terra Linda to an upset win over San Rafael Tuesday. Last night, Buckley accounted for only two points, as the Trojan Marin County Athletic League mark dropped to 3-4.

Nor did the zone defense keep McGee away from rebouns, as the 6-7 senior pulled down 12 to lead the Giants.

"We must have shot less than 30 per cent", groaned Corley afterward. "They did everything well that we did poorly."

Not especially so, as Redwood only hit for 37 per cent from the floor. Most of these misses came in a slow-paced first quarter that ended in a 10-8 Trojan lead.

"The thing that really pleased me was that we scored in a balanced way," commented Hart, who substituted for his top guns almost entirely during the last period and a half. Nevertheless, Connor (13), McGee (12), Hennessy (11), and Farb (10), all hit in double figures.

The Giants had one of their better nights at the free throw line, cashing 60 per cent, which isn't all that good, but was still more than they clicked on in earlier MCAL losses to San Rafael and Tamalpais.

Hart cited reserve Mike Sweeney for aiding in breaking the game open in the second period. "He got in there and really ran, he really moved that ball around. He also did a heckuva defensive job."

Trailing by 11 at the half, Terra Linda abandoned the conservative defense they had used until that point and went into a pressing man for man. "The press definitely hurt," Corley grimaced. "But you take a gamble doing it, and this time it failed. What are we going to do, go into a zone behind by more than ten?"

"It was an all-around fine game," concluded Hart whose Giants are now 19-2 overall. They trail undefeated Tam, however, by two full games as the first round-robin of the league concluded.

Corley said, "When Tam played us they were devastating. Redwood, however, might have been a little bit better."

Skier Eligibility Furor Played Down

SAPPORO, Japan (UPI)— Members of the 11th Olympic Winter Games Organizing Committee appeared confident Friday (Japanese time) that the International Olympic Committee (IOC) will defer any drastic action on the eligibility of top Alpine skiers who have been accused of professionalism.

Hiroshi Matsuo, director of the Winter Olympic's Press Committee, said he thought it highly unlikely that tha IOC Eligibility Commission would bar any skiers from the Games which will be held here Feb. 313.

The Commission, headed by Australia's High Weier, met Wednesday and Thursday in Tokyo.

Matsuo said the list of entries in the Alpine events, which closed at midnight Wednesday, was submitted immediately to the Eligibility Commission in Tokyo.

"The Commission screened the list which we sent," Matsuo sent. "The IOC Executive Board is scheduled to meet in Tokyo today and will consider the report of the Commission."

Minnesota Suspends Two Cage Brawlers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke spent five hours here Thursday talking with Ohio State basketball players and athletic officials as he wound up his investigation of a wild melee at Tuesday night's Ohio State-Minnesota game.

Duke said he had to contact conference members before making a decision, "but my personal opinion is there will be some action." He refused to speculate Thursday night on what action would be made later today.

The game at Minneapolis was halted with 36 seconds remaining and Ohio State leading 50-44. The Buckeyes were awarded the victory.

As Duke's ruling was awaited, the University of Minnesota announced it was suspending two players, Ron Behagen and Corky Taylor, "the principal players allegedly involved in the unfortunate incident which terminated the Ohio State University-Minnesota basketball game Tuesday night."

The university said the suspensions were pending the final decision of Duke, the Minnesota athletic committee and administrative officials.

Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan Thursday called on Duke to take "strong and forthright action." The governor termed the incident a "public mugging."

"I've never seen anything as disgraceful and brutal as the attack on the Ohio State players," Gilligan said. "Everyone who saw the films of the fighting was sickened."

JACK HANLEY

Humorous Pitcher Has Serious Side

Considerable copy has been written about Sam McDowell in the past two months since the Giants got the big lefthander from Cleveland in a trade for Gaylord Perry. McDowell personally provided most of the copy in a stream of spontaneous responses to a seemingly endless string of questions.

Some of Sudden Sam's responses sound facetious and, in fact, they do excite pleasant laughter during interviews. He does have a way with words. McDowell won't leave any dead air on pre-game or post-game radio interviews this season.

IT WOULD be a mistake to think, however, that McDowell can't be very serious, too, when the occasion warrants. Indeed, there is a sincere and unaffected humility about him, plus a realistic approach to the job he hopes to do this season for the Giants, win ball games.

"I honestly think the Giants gave up too much for me," said McDowell when he first learned of the trade. "Perry is a tremendous pitcher, one of the best. And the Giants gave up somebody (Frank Duffy) on top of that."

Then, on the realistic side, McDowell added: "They're going to see a Sam McDowell this season they've never seen before. I'm going to report for spring training in better shape than any pitcher on the Giant staff."

ALL BASEBALL fans, particularly those in Cleveland, know that McDowell and Alvin Dark didn't get along too well. But when McDowell was asked about that at his first Candlestick Park interview he refused to take a backhand slap at his former manager. "We had our problems — let it go at that," said McDowell.

With ease and grace McDowell switched the talk to his new manager, Charlie Fox, saying: "Charlie not only is a personal friend of mine but also of my Mom and Dad. I think Charlie was the only scout who saw me pitch every one of my high school games in Pittsburgh."

WHY THE GIANTS didn't sign McDowell upon his graduation from Pittsburgh's Central Catholic High School now is a familiar story. The Giants used all of their 1960 bonus budget in signing two catchers, Randy Hundley ($115,000) and Dick Dietz ($90,000).

"But we got McDowell at the right time," said Fox.

"I MEAN that Sam now is 29 and the best years of a pitcher are between 28 and 32. That's what Carl Hubbell says. And, if any man knows about pitching Hubbell does. He's developed a lot of good ones as director of our farm system."

McDowell, the hard-throwing southpaw who was heralded a decade ago as "the new Lefty Grove," subscribes to Hubbell's theory about pitchers. McDowell believes his best years are ahead of him, starting in 1972.

Christiansen Picks Handley As Assistant

STANFORD (UPI) —Ray Handley, Stanford's all-time rushing leader with 1768 yards in three season, will serve as assistant to the Indians' new head coach, Jack Christiansen.

Christiansen said today Handley, Greg Seifert, for the past five years at the University of Oregon, and Pete Katella, former head coach at UC Riverside and assistant at UOP, had been added to his staff.

Handley will coach the linebackers, Seifert the defensive backs and Katella the receivers.

California Seals Host Toronto Maple Leafs

OAKLAND (UPI) — Rather than singing the Blues, the California Golden Seals wish someone would start beating the Blues.

The Seals and St. Louis Blues are waging a ding-dong battle for third place in the National Hockey League West and both teams are slowly pulling away from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles for the final two playoff spots in the division.

Toronto also is fighting for survival in the NHL East. With Boston, New York and Montreal just about assured of playoff spots, the fourth and final one remains up for grabs between Toronto and the Detroit Red Wings. Only one point currently separates the teams.

Craig Patrick, a right wing, was sent by the Seals to Baltimore last week but is expected back with California sometime late next week.

TAMALPAIS

38-28 rebounding advantage. The Indians also shot substantially better from the field, connecting on 21 of 48 tries for 44 per cent, compared to San Rafael's 15 of 49 for 31 per cent. However, Tam almost lost the game at the free throw line, making just 15 of 30, compared to the Bulldogs' 20 of 29.

The game was close all the way, with the score tied eight times and the lead changing hands 14 times. Neither team ever led by more than four until McFerrin's jumper.

FISH AND GAME

Keeping His Eye On A Steelhead

By AL GIDDINGS

This past Wednesday, I checked about 20 anglers at the White House Pool area of Paper Mill Creek near Inverness. Leo Clausen from San Anselmo had one small steelhead. On Monday about five steelhead — all fresh run — were taken, three by two fly fishermen at the mouth of Olema Creek. Tuesday it was muddy so no dice.

Things have been tough, so tough that one angler named "Big" Ed Wood caught a small steelhead a couple of weeks ago, took it home alive and is keeping it in a neighbors fish pond so occasionally he can see what a steelhead looks like. I think that's legal, but after Feb. 29 the season will be closed, which would make it illegal to catch that fish until next year. He might have something going there!

HAZEL EDDINGS of Buck's Landing swears that the few fishermen in the area of San Pablo Bay are coming in with some nice sturgeon. Well, a good run is about due, and the stripers should begin hitting baits off the pumphouse area and the shellbanks. It might be two weeks early, but it's worth a try.

The new 1972 fishing regulations came out this week. There are some important changes to some areas of Marin County effective March 1. Even for those of you who might class yourselves as nonfishermen, if you're a beach comber read the regulations. For instance, Section 51 states, "Tidal Invertebrates may not be taken in any tide pool or other area between the high tide mark and 1,000 feet beyond the low tide mark without a written permit from the Department except as follows: (Invertebrates are all animals without a backbone.)

(a). In state parks, state beaches, state recreation areas, state underwater parks, state reserves, national parks, national monuments or national seashores: abalones, chiones, clams, cockles, crabs, lobsters, scallops and sea urchins may be taken.

(b). In all other areas, except within marine life refuges or other special closures: abalones, chiones, clams, cockles, crabs, limpets, lobsters, mussels, sand dollars, octopuses, shrimp, scallops, sea urchins and squid may be taken.

The fin fish regulation has been more or less clarified. The daily bag and possession limit for fin fish is 20 per day with not more than 10 of any one species. Within the overall bag limit of 20, the following special limits apply: Rockcod - 15 fish - all of which may be of the same species (Example: 15 black snappers). Salmon - three fish. Trout, including steelhead in the ocean or bay - three fish. Sturgeon - one fish. Stripped Bass - three fish. Exceptions to the above: Any number of starry flounder, albacore, anchovy, blue fin tuna, grunion, jack smelt, Pacific herring, petrale sole, pompano, queenfish, rays, sanddabs, shiner perch, sharks, shipjack, staghorn sculpin and white crocker may be taken. (Note, there is no limit on starry flounders). I think the above pretty well clears up the fin fish problems.

APPROXIMATELY 80,000 silver salmon will be stocked this week by the Department of Fish and Game in Dry Creek, a tributary to the Russian River in Sonoma County.

Stocking of these fish is part of a program to build up the salmon run in Dry Creek prior to construction of the Warm Springs Reservoir on the upper reaches of Dry Creek. As part of this project, a hatchery will be built to sustain the Dry Creek runs. Salmon returning to Dry Creek to spawn will be trapped at the hatchery and spawned artifically. Their eggs will be hatched and the young fish reared to yearling size, then replanted in the stream so they can make their way back to the ocean to continue the cycle.

SOME TROUT plants were made this week by the Fish and Game Department in Lake Ralphine in Sonoma County. Lake Chabot in Solano County, Contra Loma Reservoir in Contra Costa County and Lake Elizabeth, Lake Chabot and Arroyo del Valle Reservoir in Alameda County. No plants were made in Marin County to date.

Rumor has it that 40,000 silvers and 10,000 steelhead (yearlings) will be planted in lower Paper Mill soon for a shot in the arm for our steelhead and silver salmon runs. Next year the silver salmon adults of last year's 30,000 plant should be coming back. I hope these plants pay off!

SEE YOU at the Marin Rod and Gun Club banquet tomorrow night. It starts at 6 p.m.

Chicago Picks Abe Gibron

CHICAGO (UPI)—Abe Gibron stepped into the role of head coach of the Chicago Bears today and declared that "motivation" of the present players could turn the club into a contender for the National Football League championship.

Gibron, 46, was named by owner George S. Halas to succeed Jim Dooley, who was fired Dec. 29 after fulfilling four years of a five year contract. Gibron was given a multiyear contract with its exact length undisclosed.

He said that money was not a factor in his accepting the job and that it was not discussed until after a handshake had bound him to the job. When he found out the amount, he said, "it was more than I expected and I'm satisfied with it."

FULL AUTHORITY

Gibron said he was given full authority to name his own assistants. He planned to begin his search for them after the NFL draft has concluded next week. He emphasized that while he would talk to former coaches on the Bears staff, including Dooley, he was not committed to any of them.

"I have people in mind," he said, "and loyalty will be a major consideration. There's never going to be any more of the staff talking about me or other coaches."

CONCENTRATE

He said he would concentrate on coaching the offense in training camp but that by the time the season began, he hoped "to have qualified people on each plane" who would handle the offensive, defensive and specialty teams. "The only place I will stick my nose in," he said, "will be on the specialty teams."

Gibron said he planned to name six assistants, but that if the coaches he wanted weren't available he would use fewer coaches and "work a little harder myself."

'PHYSICAL TEAM'

He proclaimed that he wanted a "physical" team, and said he would control all phases of play, using a grading system during the season so that at the end of the season, he could recommend raises for deserving players.

Otherwise, he said, he would have no way of rewarding players for performance, a point which Dooley raised on one of his major problems.

"I'm a Halas man," Gibron said. "I'm a Bears man. I'm a Gibron man, but I'm not a 'yes' man. I will control all the physical end of the game and be contacted before any personnel decisions are made.

"I will put the game plan in, and take the blame for it. I will make the decisions, and the guys are going to have to earn the right to play."

MOTIVATION

Gibron said motivation could give the offensive unit the potential to win the championship. He said the defensive unit had proved itself capable.

He said he would have final approval on all trades as well as on draft choices and that he would try first to help the offense and then draft the best player available.

Gibron, who began playing pro football in 1949, played for three NFL teams, winding up his career with the Bears in 1959.

Kansas City To Retain Hank Stram

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Hank Stram has signed a new 10 year contract as head coach and vice president-team operations for the Kansas City Chiefs, owner Lamar Hunt announced today.

Stram is the only man to coach the Chiefs in the team's 12-year history. He was first hired by Hunt in 1960 when the American Football Le agu started.

Terms of Stram's new contract were not announced.

Hunt said that though the vice president title is a new one, Stram's responsibilities "have not changed dramatically."

"As in the past," Hunt said, "He will still be in control of all facets of the team operation, such as scouting, the draft, signcng players, trading and any other responsibilities involved with the preparation of the team for competition."

Stram will enter the 1972 season as the winningest active coach with the same team in pro football.

When the American Football League completed its 10 year history in 1969, Stram emerged as its winningest coach, with an 87-48-5 regular season record. He was the only man to coach the same team through the AFL's ecistence.

Under his guidance the Chiefs were the only team to win three AFL titles and the only team to represent the AFL in two Super Bowl games. The highlight came Jan. 11, 1970, when the Chiefs defeated the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl IV.

Donaldsons In Quandary

The plans of Novato's twin wrestling stars, Ken and Kirt Donaldson, are uncertain following resignation last Friday from the Air Force Academy due to admitted involvement in academic cheating.

"The boys are waiting to see if they have any further military commitment," said their mother, Mrs. Shirley Donaldson. "They don't know anything yet, and don't know when they'll find out."

Rules governing subsequent military service are complex, especially for cadets who have gone as far as their junior year, as the Donaldsons did. The 20-year-old twins may have to enter the Air Force as enlisted men.

If not, they plan to enroll in another college, probably one which emphasizes wrestling. Involvement in the cheating incident would not be a barrier to their enrollment, according to Mrs. Donaldson.

Reports indicated that one of the twins stole an examination to help a wrestling teammate who was failing, and the other twin did not report the incident after learning of it. Both actions violate the academy's strict honor code.

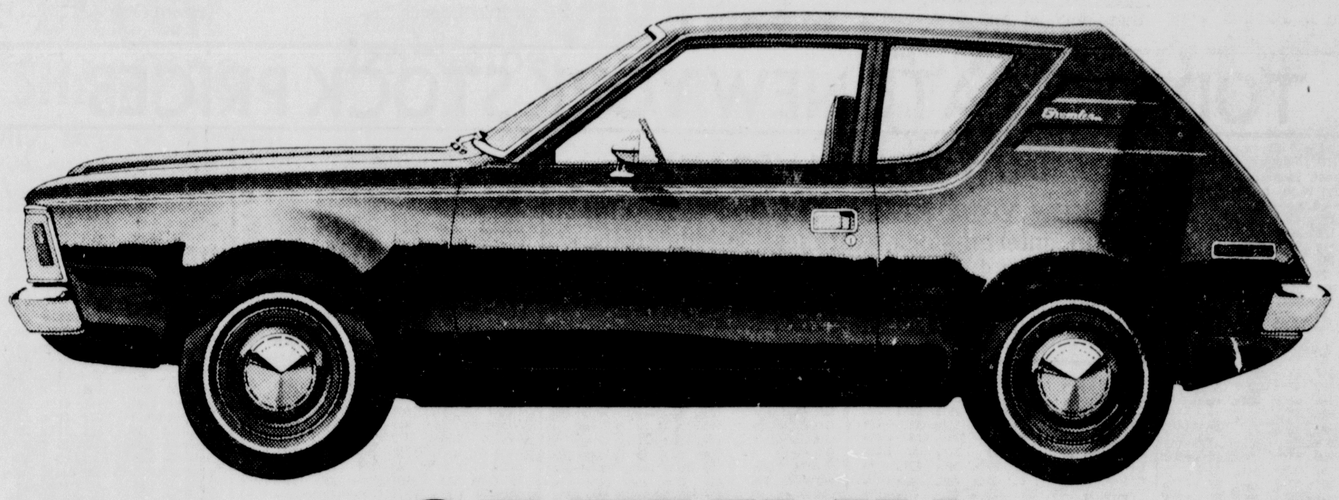

The actions were not unique. A total of 39 cadets has resigned for similar resaons since last Wednesday, including two other wrestlers.

"The boys didn't have to get involved in cheating," said Mrs. Donaldson. "They both have 3.1 or 3.2 academic averages (on a 4.0 scale). They made a dumb mistake and they realize it."

Both twins had 6-0 records in interscholastic wrestling this season and had sparked the Air Force to a 3-0 dual meet mark. Last year, they spearheaded a 10-1 Air Force team. Ken finished second in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships, and was named the most valuable wrestler on the team and the sophomore of the year by the "Amateur Wrestling News." Kirt was fifth in the NCAA.

SOLID AMERICAN THINKING:

GREMLIN

The best of American thinking has always been practical. Like our Gremlin. It's just what this country has always needed. It's small where you want it to be. With a longer wheelbase and wider track that still can turn inside a VW Beetle.

And, Gremlin is big where you'd like it to be.

And with a 21 gallon gas tank that's almost twice the capacity of just about every other small car, you can go up to 480 miles on a single tankful. Drive one. At $1999*, our Gremlin, backed by the American Motors Buyer Protection Plan, is a very Solid American buy.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price, state and local taxes excluded. White walls $34.35, California destination charges $99, and other options extra.

OUR PROMISE:

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors Corporation guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair or replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for, under normal use and service in the fifty United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Redwood Directors Back Proposed Corporate Plan

Directors of Redwood Bank, San Rafael, have approved a plan for the formation of a one-bank holding company to be known as Redwood Bankcorp.

It must be approved by shareholders and appropriate regulatory authorities. Shareholders will be asked to vote on the plan at their annual meeting March 23.

Stockholders would exchange their Redwood Bank shares for shares in the corporation on a one-to-one basis. The bank will seek an opinion from the Internal Revenue Service that the exchange will not create any tax liability. If approved, Redwood Bankcorp will be operational in six to nine months, according to president Byron W. Leydecker, who said it will permit the bank to offer additional services and broaden its business areas.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Pacific Holding Is Upgrading Potential

By ROGER SPEAR

Q. I would like your opinion on the possibility of Pacific Holding (ASE) appreciating in two years. I bought about a year ago at $18 and have a little over 400 shares. It is now down to $8 and the dividend was cut from 20 cents to 5 cents quarterly — S.S.

A. Before discussing the company's appreciation potential I think a few misconceptions about your investment's worth should be cleared up. Judging from your information, shares were purchased prior to the 5 per cent stock dividend. In that case you received 20 shares, raising your total to 420, and reducing your per share cost to 17⅛. The dividend has not been above 15 cents to 5 cents per quarter in May 1971 when shareholders received one share of McCarthy Co. for each 7 shares held in Pacific. Your 60 shares from the spin-off have a current market value of $285. Pacific Holding has also moved up in price to $9, thus, your total investment worth is over $4,000, down from $7,200.

Pacific Holding has made major changes in its corporate structure, disposing of unprofitable operations and moving solidly into the home construction field. Unfortunately, the company's market image has not yet caught up with its face lifting; Pacific still retains the stigma of the conglomerates.

While losses from discontinued operations and a special charge from the sale of a mining equity interest will be reflected in 1971 results, continuing divisions showed excellent gains. This is particularly true for 77 per cent-owned McCarthy Co., a California home builder. Sales for this subsidiary more than doubled last year and a strong increase is looked for again this year.

A tender offer late in 1971 reduced preferred equity by 162,000 shares and common by 100,000. Thus, despite reductions from the above-mentioned charges, book value was probably unchanged at the 1971 year-end from the previous year. Although speculative, shares may be held.

Kodak Vs. Polaroid: One Of The Great Competitive Battles

By S. M. MARSHALL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

One of the great competitive battles of American industry has been waged for a generation between Eastman Kodak and Polaroid, the nation's premier companies in the photography industry.

So far, the battle has involved the clash of two distinct technologies — the "instant" photography of Polaroid vs. the traditional methods of Kodak.

In the stock market, the two companies also typify different philosophies of investment. Kodak, one of the 30 Dow Jones industrials, is an aristocratic blue chip that is found in most high-grade investment portfolios.

Polaroid, on the other hand, is truly a technology company, with greater earnings leverage accompanied by more volatility, although it too must be considered a blue chip of the less-conservative sector of the stock market.

In the last two years, photography stocks generally have underperformed the market. Weakness throughout the economy and softness in consumer spending have had a significant impact on the industry.

By the same token, however, a strengthening economy should have a beneficial impact on photographic companies, and the stock market already has begun to reflect this fact. Both Kodak and Polaroid have turned in fairly slrong performances in the last two months.

A number of investment houses have analyzed the industry outlook lately and have issued commentaries on the potential for the major participants, as well as some of the minor ones.

The most bullish on Kodak and Polaroid was Burnham & Co., which said, "Currently, the shares of Kodak and Polaroid appear quite attractive looking into 1972. This attraction is based on both real earnings improvement and a better psychological climate for high-quality consumer companies."

Dean Witter & Co. observed: "Eastman Kodak is the premier investment in, and the primary beneficiary of, this projected growth period. This equity offers the investor optimal exposure tb film manufacture, the tastest-growing and most profitable industry sector."

As for Polaroid, Witter is less bullish: "Somewhat similar participation may be obtained from time to time through Polaroid Corporation, an issue with somewhat higher risk and greater volatility but more operating leverage."

Witter believes Polaroid's near-term market potential is limited, mainly because the company is integrating backward into the manufacture of cameras and films, whereas it had previously farmed out the bulk of its manufacturing business.

According to most estimates, Kodak's earnings rose 10 per cent or more in 1971, whereas Polaroid's fell about 5 per cent. The Polaroid decline is attributed to heavy charges for research and development, along with the aggressive but costly introduction of three new cameras.

Polaroid has been penalizing earnings in a recession to build the base for a recovery when the economy improves. Still, few analysts are willing to project 1972 results, mainly because the extent of its increased costs is unknown.

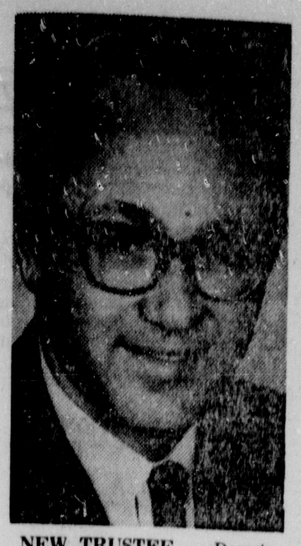

"Estimating Polaroid's earnings in 1972 and 1973 is extremely difficult because of the competitive marketing situation that will exist," said Burnham's William D. Schwartz.

Nightspot Has Identity Problem

The city's design review committees decided Wednesday night that the brightly colored decorations on the building's front really were a sign, not a mural.

Committee members ordered owner Bob Considine to go either through variance procedures to obtain a permit for an oversized sign, or remove the huge lion painting.

The decision was not unanimous, according to Thelma Foster, committee secretary. She reported one commissioner impishly held that the painting really wasn't a sign because "they don't sell lions in there."

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee also:

OFFICERS — Elected a new chairman for the first time in the panel's five-year existence — Thomas Cagwin to succeed James G. McDonald. E. Keith France was elected vice chairman.

BENCH — Approved designer Paul Selinger's plans to construct the Hans Fischel Memorial Bench at Robson-Harrington Park from old brick from the mansion, with redwood seat and back.

SAFETY — Bowed to service station owner John Young's arguments that a pole supporting a free-standing sign at his station at 1535 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard be painted beige instead of the black ordered earlier by the committee. Drivers might hit the black pole at night, Young said.

China Developing Supersonic Jet

PARIS (UPI)—China has been working on its own supersonic fighter plane for the last eight months, an official French Air Force review said today.

The new plane, called the F9, flies at twice the speed of sound and has been manufactured in China at the rate of about 10 per month since April, according to air actualities, the official monthly review of the French air force.

"The F9, of Chinese conception, is a multipurpose plane, Mach two, weighing 10 tons," the review said.

Woman Head Of Pro-Abortion Group

Patricia T. Maginnis, a candidate for the Fourth District seat to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, is the chairman of the pro-abortion group known as the Association to Repeal Abortion Laws.

Juvenile Subsidy Participation Urged

The Marin County Juvenile Justice Commission has recommended that the county reenter a state subsidy program for handling juvenile offenders locally rather than sending them to the youth authority.

According to John W. Brewer, county probation officer, the commission's recommendation was made Wednesday.

If the county reentered the program, from which it withdrew 18 months ago, the state would grant $4,000 per offender not sent to state facilities.

Brewer estimated $250,000 per year could be received — enough for the county to finance a special program under the probation department.

He said the commission's decision was based on recent state legislation which doubled the amount reimbursable to counties for each offender.

The county withdrew from the subsidy program in 1970 after receiving only $16,000 from the state due to a high number of Marin commitments that year.

The county board of supervisors is expected to consider the commission's recommendation in February.

76 AF Colonels To Become Generals

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force will promote 76 colonels to the rank of general, including astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, a veteran of three space flights who is now the Space Agency's deputy director of flight crew operations.

The promotions announced Thursday also include the Air Force's second woman general, Col. Ethel A. Hoefly, 52, chief of the Air Force Nurse Corps. The Army has had four women generals while the Navy has yet to name its first woman fleet admiral.

Free Soup Bowls Are Poisonous

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Campbell Soup Co. is trying to recover 100,000 bowls given away as premiums because their decorative decals have been found to contain poisonous substances, the county health department said Wednesday.

The bowls were manufactured by the American Art China Co. of Sebring, Ohio, said Dr. Gerald A. Heidbreder, county health officer.

They were given away as premiums last summer, are six inches in diameter and an inch and a quarter deep, Heidbreder said.

The Chicago Board of Health discovered lead and cadmium, poisonous substances which can be activated by acidic foods, in the decals on some of the bowls, he said. Only the bowls with decals are being recalled Heidbreder said. Others of the same type without decals are safe.

Recommendation For County Job

The Marin Council for Civic Affairs has recommended that Charles B. Weers, a county labor official, be appointed to the Marin County Personnel Commission.

Weers, secretary of the Marin County Labor Council, would succeed attorney Bella H. Aaron, who has asked not to be reappointed.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Losing Finesse Is Waste Of Time In This Spade Action

A losing finesse is a waste of time. The opponents can use that wasted time to attack your weak point. If you don't waste the time, you may scramble home.

POOR OPENER

When this hand came along in a national tournament a few years ago, I picked a poor opening lead from the West hand. I should have opened the ace of spades. The no-trump had been bid behind me, so the king of spades was clearly located. Instead I wasted time with a diamond opening lead, and declarer never let me recover from this fumble.

South won the first trick in dummy with the king of diamonds, cashed the king of hearts and led a heart toward his hand. If he finessed, he would get an immediate spade shift, but he saw this danger and put up the ace of trumps.

Declarer then led another diamond toward dummy. If South finessed, East would return a spade at once. Before South could get any discards on the diamonds, the defense would take two spades, a trump, a diamond and a club.

SEES DANGER

Once more South saw his danger. He put up the ace of diamonds and led a third diamond. He had refused two finesses in diamonds and one finesse in hearts, and all refusals were necessary.

TOO LATE

East took the queen of diamonds and led a spade, but it was now too late. I took the ace of spades and led another spade to dummy's king. Declarer cashed one of dummy's diamonds, discarding his last spade. This assured the contract. South lost only one spade, one club, one heart and one diamond.

Minority Group Hiring Proposal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, has introduced legislation designed to increase the number of minority group members employed by small contractors.

The bill, introduced Monday, would allow counties and cities to award contracts to firms who are within 5 per cent of the low bid if they employ a percentage of minority group employes equal to the percentage of minorities in the community.

Lyman Hails Guideline On Franklin

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The report that recommended the dismissal of Stanford Associate Professor H. Bruce Franklin will be used long after people forget the identity of Franklin or the president of the university according to Stanford President Richard W. Lyman.

Speaking to 250 Stanford alumni Wednesday Lyman said the faculty advisory report that recommended firing the Maoist English professor charged with inciting students to riot would serve as a "sober document" on "the nature and significance of a faculty member's responsibilities, the need to balance the rights of the individual against those of the institution, and ... how the institution's rights in turn serve to protect the individual."

He said the report would be an example of appropriate standards by which to judge similar cases.

Lyman, who brought charges against Franklin and asked for his dismissal nearly a year ago, said the most important thing about the case was not "the fate of Dr. Franklin nor the immediate impact" on Stanford but the "care and exercise" that went into the document that brought about his dismissal.

Western To Appeal Boot In Alaska

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Western Airlines said yesterday it will appeal to the courts a Civil Aeronautics Board action denying its bid for reconsideration of the board's decision to suspend Western's service to Ketchikan and Juneau, Alaska.

On Dec. 9, the board decided only one carrier — Alaska Airlines — should provide service over a route stretching from Seattle-Ketchikan-Sitka-Juneau-Anchorage. Au part of the decision the board suspended Western's authority to fly into Ketchikan and Juneau.

Western charged the board did not properly estimate the traffic forecasts for the market. The airline also said the board's decision to extend for another seven years an already-existing decision suspending Pan American's route authority into the two cities indicated the board plans eventually to make its suspension of Western's authority a permanent decision.

The board rejected both Western arguments. In a decision issued Wednesday there is nothing in its ruling which "prejudges the action the board will take after the Western and Pan American suspensions expire." The board also argued Western did not substantiate its argument the board's findings on the traffic in the market were in error.

In a statement issued today, Western said it would appeal through courts the board's decision.

400,000-Year-Old Tusks Discovered

HONG KONG (UPI)—Archeologists in China have discovered two elephant tusks 400,000 years old, the New China News Agency (NCNA) reported today.

In addition to the nine-foot-long tusks, teeth and bones of the ancient elephant (elephus namadicus) also were found in excavations near Chengcow in the Central China province of Honan.
